MURDER CASES

To be Tried as Soon as Possible, Says District Attorney

CAMBRIDGE, July 9.—District Attorney Higgins announced today that he would make a strong effort to clear up the four capital cases now pending in the Middlesex superior criminal court during the coming fall.

The murder trials will begin in September when on the 13th James H. Harmon of Somerville, who is under indictment for shooting his sweetheart, Miss Maud Hartley of Somerville on Dec. 28th last will be called to the bar of justice. In October an effort will be made to solve the murder of Annie Mullins in Arlington on March 29, 1908, by placing Peter Delory or Somerville and James Mantir a Greek, of Manchester, N. H., on trial. Delory claims that Mantir killed the woman, but the grand jury indicted both men.

Mrs. Mary Kelleher of Somerville, including her three children, will be tried in November or December, following which case will come the trial of John Wesley Brown,the Newton colored man who is under indictment for shooting his sweetheart, Laura Beland last fall.

In addition to the capital trials, District Attorney Higgins will argue before the supreme court against the exceptions taken last spring by Chester Jordan, who was convicted of the murder of his wife, Honora.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Middlesex:

Respectfully libels and represents Fanny B. Brunkhorst (alias Frances), of Somerville, in said County, that she was lawfully married to John P. Brunkhorst, now of Los Angeles, in the State of California, at Boston, in our County of Suffolk, on the eighteenth day of April, A. D. 1897, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said John P. Brunkhorst lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit, at said Boston and said Somerville; that your libellant has always been faithful to her marriage vows and obligations, but the said John P. Brunkhorst, being wholly regardless of the same, at said Somerville, at divers times and particularly on or about the thirteenth day of October, A. D. 1907, assaulted and beat her and was guilty of cruel and abusive treatment of your libellant; and since said marriage has contracted gross and confirmed habits of intoxication by the voluntary and excessive use of intoxicating liquors; and being of sufficient ability grossly, wantonly and cruelly refuses and neglects to provide a suitable maintenance for her.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said John P. Brunkhorst and that suitable alimony may be awarded her and that she may be permitted to resume her maiden name of Frances B. Joseph.

Dated the sixth day of July, A. D. 1909.

D. 1905, utterly deserted your libellant and has continued such desertion from that time to the date hereof, being more than three consecutive years next preceding the filing of this libel.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Georgiena A. Tucker, and that the care and custody of their minor child, Charles W. Tucker, whose age is twelve years, may be given to him.

ENGLISH AIRSHIP

NIGHT FLYING DIRIGIBLE TURNS OUT TO BE HUGE REALITY

LONDON, July 9.—The Daily News which has been one of the chief ridiculers of the mysterious night-flying airship which alternately scared and amused England some time ago, now prints a story claiming that it was a real and great vessel, which, if it has accomplished all the inventor says it has, removes all fear of England falling behind in the race for aerial supremacy. The News says the mysterious vessel is now housed in a huge shed, which is big enough to hold three airships, in a private park, about an hour's ride by automobile from London.

WOMEN STRUCK

They Ran in Front of Fred N. Wier's Auto

Fred N. Wier's big touring car knocked down two young women at the corner of Central and Middle streets, shortly after noon today and the accident caused considerable excitement and the collection of a large crowd, though as far as could be learned there were no serious results. Mr. Wier was his own chauffeur and in the car with him were Lawyer John Rogers and Mr. Sanborn, the well known photographer.

Fortunately, the machine was going at a slow rate of speed else it would have passed over the prostrate women. As it was, Mr. Wier stopped the machine the moment it struck the women, and they were picked up directly in front of the wheels. The women were badly frightened but were apparently unhurt, and they walked away when the crowd gathered. Mr. Wier jumped from his seat and went to the assistance of the women. It is said he presented them his card and asked them to call at his office this evening. The women declined to give their names. It is said they were mill operatives on their way to dinner. Mr. Wier said they ran right in front of his machine without giving him any chance to pull up. He rejoiced that they had not been injured.

AGAINST "EVIL SPORTS"

DENVER, Colo., July 9.—Football, Marathon running and such sports as tend to disable the American youth received a rough jolt in the department of physical education of the National Education association today. The place of physical education in the field of hygiene was the subject of William F. Slocum, president of Colorado college, Colorado Springs.

Ira B. Fee, deputy superintendent of schools of Wyoming, made an attack on what he termed "The rough-house sports." He admitted that there is an element of virtue in football but in the end it is far too rough.

William F. Sutton of the University of Texas led the discussion, and he started the ball rolling by urging that what he termed the "evil sports" be placed under the ban of the association.

In the discussion that followed it became evident that the trend is for a form of athletics which will enable the weaker boys to partake in the exercise which is now dominated by their muscular brothers. The department of manual training held its last session and this time the influence of arts and science upon the rural home was taken up.

SENATOR FLINT

Wants Arizona Admitted as a State

WASHINGTON, July 9.—After a busy quarter of an hour given over to the introduction of numerous bills including one by Senator Flint providing for the admission of Arizona as a state the senate today took up the Philippine tariff bill and the Porto Rican measures were urged upon the consideration of the senate by Messrs. Lodge and Depew. Several senators declined to rescind the order against taking up general business during the present session but unanimous consent for the consideration of the insular affairs measure was granted. Explaining the necessity for prompt action on the Philippine bill Mr. Lodge said that as the general tariff bill provided for the admission of products of the United States into the Philippines free of duty a revision of the Philippine tariff must be had now so that both subjects may be disposed of in conference at the same time.

INSECT DESTROYER

Device for Slaughter of Gypsy and Brown-Tail Moth

Will be Demonstrated in This City—Insects Killed by Electricity—Brown-Tails are Late in Arriving—Cold Weather Delayed Them—Imported Parasite Doing Valiant Service in Destroying the Moths

If Charles H. Chesley's bug killer works all right and the gypsy and brown tail moths should put in here on their wedding flight, there will be electrocutions by the thousands in Lowell within a few days.

Mr. Chesley belongs in Dover, N. H., and he has doped out something along the line of an invention that he says will do a job on the moths providing they condescend to "shake" with it.

Mr. Chesley explained his invention to the park commissioners some time ago and said he would like the privilege of coming to Lowell and demonstrating his electric bug killer at his own expense. The commissioners couldn't see anything the matter with that proposition and told him to come along.

He arrived here this morning, and, in company with representatives of the park department had a conference with Supt. Hunnewell of the Lowell Electric Light Corporation. In order to demonstrate the machine it was necessary to have the consent and co-operation of the electric light people, and in view of the fact that the park commission was interested to the extent of trying the thing out, Mr. Hunnewell said that his company would be only too glad to assist, and the demonstration will take place Monday or Tuesday of next week.

The Dover, New Hampshire, man's bug killer is about 32 inches long and about 24 inches wide. The frame work is wound with wire and its the wire, of course, that does the trick. The wires are about one-quarter of an inch apart and are arranged in a sort of "coil within coil" fashion. When the insect strikes the coils he cannot but help to form the "sure death" connection and the answer is a dead insect—providing the machine makes good.

The machine will be located on the pole directly below the light, but will be worked on a separate circuit. The circuit that will operate the bug killer will be of about the same power as that used in house lighting. The machines will be put in position by the electric light people.

Brown Tails Are Late

The brown tail moths are a little late in arriving. The brown tails were due about July 5," said Supt. Whittet of the park department today, but the weather has been too cold for them. A few have arrived and should we have a few warm days and nights you may rest assured that we would have as many as we would care to entertain.

"Last year they began to fly about the first of the month, and on the 4th, 5th and 6th of the month swarmed about the electric lights at night, and covered the sides of buildings and other things by day.

"My men have reported finding large numbers of caterpillars, both of the brown-tail and gypsy, under the burlap placed about the shade trees in the city and the gypsies show an increase over last year."

When the Gypsies Fly

The gypsy moth does not fly until about July 15. Supt. Whittet has had the city divided into four districts with a man in charge of each district. These men are expected to inspect all their trees daily, killing the caterpillars upon the burlap with a wire brush.

A European Parasite

A parasite that preys upon the brown-tail and gypsy moths has been liberated in the state, some where in the vicinity of Saugus, but so far as is known they have not made their appearance in Lowell. A circular having to do with this parasite and issued by State Forester F. W. Rane reads as follows:

"Do not destroy these beneficial insects. They are our European imported friends already established in many places, and doing valiant service in destroying the gypsy and brown tail moths. They are very active.

The scientific name is Calesoma Sycophanta. In each stage they are the destroyers of the gypsy and brown-tail caterpillar and pupae." Circulars with pictures representing this insect in different states will be posted in conspicuous places in the near future.

Food for Thought

What will the imported parasite live upon when the gypsy and brown-tails have disappeared, if they ever do? That question was put to Supt. Whittet today, and he allowed it was too difficult to answer. He harked back to the importation of the English sparrow. That little nuisance was brought here to destroy the canker worm and none can say but he fulfilled his mission nobly. But after he had destroyed the worm, he followed the example of the cow that filled the pail with milk and then kicked the pail over. The English sparrow drove the native birds away and a sufficient number of native birds, it is argued, would solve the problem of the gypsy and brown-tail moths. These insects would "never do" for food for the parasite. The chances are, however, that the introduction of European production will have died out before he will have done away with the gypsy and brown-tail.

GETS A DIVORCE

Decree in Favor of Mrs. Aldrich

PROVIDENCE, July 9.—With her husband in Mexico, Mrs. Mary Larned Dodge Aldrich, wife of Edward Burgess Aldrich, eldest son of U. S. Senator Aldrich, was granted a divorce on the ground of nonsupport and was awarded the custody of their 10-year-old child, Susan Katherine Aldrich, the husband being ordered to pay $10 a week for the support of the child. Mrs. Aldrich asked for no allowance for her own support and received none.

The petition of Mrs. Aldrich was a cross-petition also in the suit of her husband against her for divorce on the ground of desertion. Aldrich's petition was dismissed and denied by Judge Brown. The case was not contested. Aldrich's petition was filed May 19, 1908, alleging that his wife had deserted him and he asked for the custody of the child. Mrs. Aldrich's motion alleged that for more than a year he had neglected to provide for her. In a deposition which was taken June 20 she stated that so far as she knew he is in the rubber business in Mexico and has been for six or seven years. She deposed that she had paid all the household bills herself during the past year.

The Aldrichs were married in St. John's Episcopal church Nov. 25, 1903. The first petition for divorce was filed by Mrs. Aldrich in May, 1904, but was continued.

TERRY McGOVERN

NEW YORK, July 9.—Terry McGovern, the former bantam weight pugilist, was committed by a Brooklyn magistrate to the observation ward of the Kings county hospital yesterday. Witnesses testified that his actions for some time past indicate that his mind has weakened. If the hospital authorities take this view at the end of a week's observation it is probable that he will be sent to an institution for treatment.

WHAT WE'RE AFTER

We want your cigar business in small or box quantities. We have another 10c smoke, a clear Havana filler imported Sumatra wrapper that we sell for 7c, four for 25c, or $3.00 for a box of 50. It equals in every way the popular domestic 10 centers and in our estimation is superior to most of them in that it contains no valerian or other "dope," just pure tobacco. Unsmoked cigars returned if not satisfactory. Howard, the Druggist, 187 Central street. (Opposite Cabot, to a Joyce, fresh today.)

BLAMES BROTHER

Worcester Man Accuses Him of Larceny

WORCESTER, July 9.—Louis B. Segel of 37 Orange st., aged 21, has the umbrella record beaten a mile, according to developments in a charge made against him yesterday by his brother, Abraham S. Segel, an umbrella manufacturer at 56 Coral street. Louis had 100 of the rain-shedders laid by "for a rainy day" or for some other purpose when his room was searched by the police yesterday.

According to Abraham, he has been missing umbrellas from his stock with such regularity that it became too noticeable and his suspicions were directed to his younger brother. He had a search warrant issued for a look through his brother's room and there the searching officers discovered the big supply. Abraham then had a warrant issued for Louis' arrest, and he was locked up.

OUTING AT CANOBLE LAKE

The boys of St. Louis's parish enjoyed an outing at Canoble lake park yesterday. Rev. Frs. Jacques and Fortier and Mr. Henri Filion and Mr. Joseph A. Desrosiers accompanied the boys. Arriving at the grounds the boys entered into a varied list of sports. At noon there was an intermission for dinner and in the afternoon the sports were resumed, the return trip to the city being made in the early evening.

BOAT WAS UPSET

Four Boys Were Rescued From Drowning

CONCORD, N. H., July 8.—John Jepson, aged 16; John McAuley, 15; Joseph Murphy, 15, and Burt McAuley, 11, all had a very narrow escape from drowning while running a sailboat on Penacook lake yesterday. The boat was overturned in a squall and it was more than an hour before the boys' cries for help were heard.

L. P. George of Ashland, who was at work at the Derby cottage, finally rescued the boys with a power boat. The youngest of the quartet had gone under water twice when Mr. George reached him. All the boys were much exhausted from their experience.

City Marshal Kimball and Officer Batchelder went to the scene in an automobile as soon as notice reached the city and arrived at the lake shore just as the power boat started to the rescue.

AMBASSADOR BRYCE

Spoke at Lake Champlain Tercentenary Celebration

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 9.—Speaking here today in connection with the Champlain tercentenary, the Right Hon. James Bryce, the British ambassador, referred at the outset to the advantage of this, a comparatively new country, in knowing intimately of its earliest development. He said:

You are commemorating, and it is most fitting you should commemorate a great event with which the history of your noble state begins, the discovery of the lake which extends all along its eastern side and is one of its greatest charms. You have a notable advantage over European nations in knowing so much more about your earlier days. We know little, and the changes that have made Great Britain what she is have been slow and gradual. Here when I think of what this region was 300 years ago I can hardly believe that such a change can have been accomplished in so short a time. What an awe inspiring and terrible wilderness these shores were in 1609. What daring was needed to explore these vast and solitary foreste, solitary because the Indian tribes had made them so by incessant wars! What a spirit the men had who in their frail canoes traversed these rivers and lakes, or followed a difficult trail through woods full of wild beasts, or in which savages, more dangerous than wild beasts, lurked in ambush, with no guides except Indians, often treacherous, and no hope of succor from friends left behind. When Champlain first glided over these waters, there was not a European nearer than Virginia, where the English had made their little settlement two years before, and Champlain assuredly did not wish the English any nearer. Only in this same year, 1609, did Henry Hudson, our own famous navigator, enter the river that now bears his name.

They were wonderful men, these explorers of the New World, beginning with Christopher Columbus and Magellan, a hero not less bold and skilful than Columbus himself. Cabot, Vasco Nunez de Balboa, De Soto, Cortes, Pizarro, La Salle, Hudson are a famous list. Among them our hero of today—Samuel Champlain—stands out as one of the ablest, and certainly one of the best. He was equally skilful by sea and by land. He governed his own colony of Quebec wisely. He described clearly and exactly the coasts along which he had voyaged. He was always ready to fight, but he had no love of slaughter. He inspired confidence in his followers and treated them far better than did La Salle. He thought first of France and of his faith, and last of himself. He was what we call a "fine fellow," and well deserves to be commemorated as you commemorate him today. Let us picture him sailing up the long windings of the river and coming out on a sunny evening upon the shining levels of this vast lake, stretching south farther than eye could reach—the lake which the Indians called the Gate of the Country, Caniaderiguarunte, a noble highway for commerce, but then enclosed by deep and silent forests. What hopes for dominion and trade thrilled his soul! It was the age when the mighty Spanish empire, embracing all the southern part of this continent and most of South America had stirred up France and Holland and England to seek to found colonial empires; and the example of Champlain fired many another French pioneer, till Du Luth reached the farthest corner of Lake Superior and La Salle passing up Lake Michigan struck and descended the mysterious Mississippi.

Of all that has happened since Champlain discovered what was to become the state of Vermont, and of the long process by which this region was filled with the stalwart race of the Green Mountain boys, many of whom have become so famous in your history, I have no time to speak. Leaping across the centuries to see what the shores of your lake are now, one is struck by the thought how different the present is from what anyone fancied it would be, how all the purposes of men are overruled, how little anyone can foretell the results of his own work and the fate of the lands he has discovered. Samuel Champlain journeyed and strove for the dominion of the king of France, for the trade in furs, for the conversion of the Indians. The king of France has gone. The furs have gone. The Indians have gone. The lake secured a superb higway for trade, and when the first steam vessel was launched upon it in 1808, men must again have expected it to become such a highway. But soon afterwards railways began to be made, and by the time that the lands to the north and south had plenty of passengers and freight to send, the railroads were ready to carry and have since carried both. Now your lake is chiefly valuable for its fisheries, which I trust will be much developed and improved under the treaty which Mr. Root and I had the pleasure of negotiating last year, and for the varied beauty of its winding shores, backed by picturesque mountain groups. It is now, after much strife, a peaceful lake, on whose banks Canadians of English and French speech and Americans dwell in friendship which we trust will never be broken. We may wonder what its fortunes will be, what history has in store for it in the future. I have just spoken of the failure of prophecies, yet am tempted to indulge myself in a prophecy which may be made the more safe because before the time when its correctness can be determined the prophet himself will have been forgotten. The shores of Lake Champlain do not seem likely to be the chosen home either of any great agricultural or of any great manufacturing industry. There are still some forests, and may possibly be mineral wealth not yet revealed. But the greatest asset of Vermont seems to be its men, the race, vigorous in mind and body that inhabits it, and the varied beauty of its wild and romantic nature. As wealth goes on increasing in those regions of the middle west to which nature has given a richer soil and a profusion of minerals, but far less beauty, as well as in the gigantic cities of the east there will be an ever increasing longing among the people to enjoy the scenic loveliness of this land of lakes and mountains. More and more will the Green mountains and the White mountains and the shores of your lakes be the place to which men will come from those crowded regions to seek rest and health and recreation and the joys of unspoiled nature. One who foresees such a future and who himself loves nature would counsel you to bear this in mind and to suffer none of the finest gifts of nature to be lost by any want of foresight. To spare the woods, wherever they are an element of beauty, to prevent unsightly buildings from destroying some exquisite prospect, to keep open the mountains, and allow no one to debar pedestrians from climbing to their tops and wandering along their slopes as men are (most unfortunately) barred for the sake of what is called sport, in some parts of Europe—these are some of the means by which this noble pleasure ground, the most delightful region of eastern America, can be preserved for the enjoyment of your nation retaining some of that romantic charm and wild simplicity which it had when Champlain's canoe first clove the silent waters of your lake.

BRIDE FAINTED

After Marriage Ceremony Was Performed

LEBANON, N. H., July 9.—The marriage of George Walter Terwilliger, aged 27, claiming to hail from New York city, and Hazel Belle Hubbard, aged 19, from Lyme Center, N. H., at the town clerk's office yesterday afternoon was performed after many disappointments.

The couple arrived in town on a morning train and spent all day trying to find some one who would marry them. The man claimed to be a Catholic and the first place visited was the rectory, where they were unsuccessful. Later they visited the town clerk's office and secured a marriage license and were directed to the home of a clergyman, but returned in a short time saying he was not in and they had decided to be married by the town clerk.

Wilbur F. Smith, the clerk, does not waste any time in the performance of his duties and the ceremony was so quickly over that the bride did not realize her position for several minutes, when she calmly walked across the office, laid her head on her husband's shoulder and fainted away. She was quickly revived and the couple left town on the 3 o'clock train south.

WANTS DIVORCE

Man Says His Wife Was Cruel

BOSTON, July 9.—Charles M. Kimball, a wealthy polish manufacturer, well known in Winthrop, Wakefield and this city, has brought a libel for divorce, on the ground of cruel and abusive treatment against his wife, Clara May Kimball.

They were married in East Boston, Feb. 12, 1888. He alleges as specific acts of cruel and abusive treatment that his wife had used language toward him that was wanton, cruel and hateful and has called him various unpleasant names. She also accused him of having been intimate with other women.

He alleges that she dampened the sheets of the bed two years ago so that he contracted rheumatism, from which he suffers even now.

He makes other charges regarding her treatment of their 4-year old child and of threats she is alleged to have made to him. In an underoath he alleges she would say there was poison in the food he was eating.

She has brought proceedings in equity against him seeking to protect her rights in the polish business which she alleges he has transferred to a corporation. She claims she is largely responsible for the success of the business. There will be a hearing on that bill before Judge Richardson in the equity session today.

Mr. Kimball lives in Winthrop. He filed a bill of specifications to the libel setting out the charges upon which he relied to maintain his libel, on motion of counsel for the libellee. He seeks the custody of the child also.

MERCHANTS' DAY

WAS OBSERVED AT BURLINGTON, VT., TODAY

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 9.—After the events of yesterday when the president of the United States and the British and French ambassador came here to assist in the Burlington celebration in connection with the tercentenary anniversary of the discovery of Lake Champlain, today was practically a day of rest. The customary band concert was given in city hall park in the forenoon and in the afternoon there were trotting races at the tracks of the Burlington Driving club. Today was called "Merchants' day," and special bargain attractions were expected to bring a large crowd of shoppers into the city.

THE CZAR

TO ATTEND THE CELEBRATION AT POTTAVAI

ST. PETERSBURG, July 9.—Emperor Nicholas left St. Petersburg today to attend the celebration at Pottavai of the bicentennial of the battle in which the Russian forces under Peter the Great overwhelmed the Swedes under Charles XII. The imperial train halted at the station of Luminez near Pinsk where his majesty received a deputation of 10 railroad machinists who brought the traditional Russian offering of bread and salt. The emperor shook hands with all the members of the deputation. Later at the station of Stany his majesty received the marshals of nobility, the representatives of the Polish aristocracy as well as zemstvoist deputations from nearby provinces.

LOWELL'S PRACTICAL TAILORS

LOWERING SEWER

City Men are Hard at Work in Prescott Street

The work of lowering the Prescott street sewer, work that was begun a few days ago, is destined to interrupt travel to an extent, that will probably border on aggravation, but it is necessary work and the sooner done the sooner over.

There is no telling just how long the job will take. It depends upon whether or not any ledge is encountered and that is not seriously feared.

The work of lowering the sewer will extend from where operations have already been begun, to or a little beyond the hydrant located in front of the Bay State Dye works in Prescott street. Operations will be confined to where the gang is now at work until the tracks have been cleared and then will come the closing of Prescott street.

The absolute closing of the street is made necessary because of the narrowness of it and also because what is known as a cable machine will be operated there. The cable machine is similar, in a way, to the device used in the work of lowering the Merrimack street sewer, except that larger buckets are used and the cable machine so works as to use a bucket in any spot, place or position, where as in the operation of the machine used in the Merrimack street work buckets could be used only in certain positions.

In the Merrimack street job the dirt was carted into John street, but the necessity of such carting will be obviated in the Prescott street job by a more canny operation of the cable machine, the dirt being more readily transferred from place to place.

The old Prescott street sewer is about 12 feet deep, and the new sewer, which is rendered necessary for proper drainage and because the street is to be paved to conform with Central and Merrimack streets, will be 18 feet deep, an allowance of one foot being made for the brick work.

Before moving the cable machine into the street all wires will have to be taken down and it was stated this afternoon that the work will be pushed for all it is worth. The new sewer will not extend beyond the hydrant heretofore spoken of because the sewer beyond the hydrant is sufficiently low.

The street railway company is aware of what it will have to contend with in the line of interruption because of the lowering of the sewer and arrangements are being made to fit the occasion.

TIMBER BURNED

Fire in Woodland Owned by Thomas Varnum

A fire which broke out in the woodland belonging to Thomas Varnum on the West Meadow road, off Varnum Ave., after noon yesterday burned over a considerable area of ground and destroyed much standing and cut timber before being placed under control. The fire was fought by Mr. Varnum's employes, neighboring farmers and their employes as well as a detachment from the local fire department, which had been summoned by telephone, but continued to spread and finally it was found necessary to send in a bell alarm from box 74 about 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Men have been at work cutting down the timber and after it had been piled up there was considerable small growth and brush lying around the ground, and it was in this loose brush that the fire started.

It was discovered by one of the workmen who, with the assistance of his fellow workmen and the farmers in the vicinity started to battle with the flames. The flames, fanned by a strong wind, spread rapidly and it was soon found that the volunteer firemen were unable to cope with the fire. Word was telephoned to the central fire station and several pieces of apparatus were sent to the scene, but the flames still continued to spread and finally it was found necessary to send in a bell alarm.

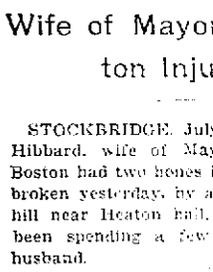
THIRD OPERATION PREVENTED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill. — "I want to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was so sick that two of the best doctors in Chicago said I would die if I did not have an operation. I had already had two operations, and they wanted me to go through a third one. I suffered day and night from inflammation and a small tumor, and never thought of seeing a well day again. A friend told me how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her, and I tried it, and after the third bottle was cured."—Mrs. ALVENA SPERLING, 11 Langdon Street, Chicago, Ill.



If you are ill do not drag along at home or in your place of employment until an operation is necessary, but build up the feminine system, and remove the cause of those distressing aches and pains by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Clarke was in the chair in the auditorium meeting while N. H. Lathrop presided over the other. At noon evangelistic services were held in the Metropolitan Opera house.

SEN. ALDRICH

GOT AFTER SEN. BEVERIDGE IN SENATE YESTERDAY

WASHINGTON, July 9.—"When the senator wants something done it is for the workman, but when he is opposed to something it is for the manufacturer," hotly retorted Senator Aldrich, late yesterday, in reply to Senator Beveridge's statement in the senate that the senator from Rhode Island was better informed on the steel mills, but he himself was "better informed upon the conditions and desires of the working people," and that what he was advocating would make more full work days for the workman.

"And the senator from Rhode Island is always for the manufacturer and never for the employes," was Mr. Beveridge's rejoinder.

"The senator is presuming a great deal when he makes that statement," said Mr. Aldrich.

"The senator told me that he had been obliged, in view of the political exigencies"——

Before Mr. Aldrich could proceed further the Indiana senator was upon his feet. "The senator must correct that," he said hotly.

"That is what I understood," said Mr. Aldrich.

"The senator is going very far to repeat private conversation. I did not say political exigencies."

That ended the incident, which had its beginning when the Indiana senator, in urging his provision to exempt tin plate from the drawback clause of the tariff, said in contradiction of his own previous statement, that he had just been informed that there were tin plate mills in Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia and elsewhere which were not in the steel trust. It was then that he made the statement that called down Mr. Aldrich's sarcasm upon his head.

TERRIBLE TRAGEDY

Man Killed His Wife and Committed Suicide

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., July 9.—The wails of a deserted infant greeting the ears of Charles Small, a milkman, brought the discovery yesterday of a murder and suicide at No. 2406 Whirlpool street. George England, 30 years of age, during the night had sent a bullet through the heart of his four months' bride and turning the weapon upon himself shot a bullet through his head. England, a New York Central brakeman, was incensed when he returned home last evening to find his wife away and dinner not ready. Neighbors heard the couple quarreling late at night but heard no shots.

The infant had belonged to Mrs. England's sister who died recently in Detroit.

ATE PARIS GREEN

Tyngsboro Baby Poisoned in Potato Field

Clara Mitchell, aged 1 year, 9 months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Mitchell, of Tyngsboro, died yesterday morning at her parents' home of arsenical poisoning, having partaken of paris green.

On Wednesday afternoon about 5 o'clock, the child's grandfather was sprinkling paris green on the potato plants in a field near the house and had a pail containing a quantity of the poisonous stuff. The little one was playing on the piazza near her grandmother's chair when the latter suddenly missed her and upon looking around saw her in the field. She ran to the little one and found the child's face and hands smeared with the paris green which she had tried to eat. Dr. Lambert was sent for and while awaiting his arrival the mother attempted to relieve the little one but without success. The child died early yesterday morning.

GLOBE TROTTER

Jos. Mikulec of Austria Left Lowell Today

Joseph Mikulec, who is on a walk of 25,000 miles for a stake of $10,000, arrived in Lowell yesterday and stopped over in the Spindle City until this morning, when he resumed his journey and started for Concord, N. H. Joe has already walked 18,000 miles and claims that he has not been sick one day since he started, nearly four years ago. He says that the $10,000 stake is no "pipe," it being put up by a publishing house in Croatia.

Mikulec is an Austrian, who has the English down better than some who have used it all their lives. He is attired in loose and comfortable clothing for walking and his breast is covered with medals and other insignia. He started on his trip around the world on Feb. 5, 1906, and since that time has covered the greater part of Europe, the eastern coast of South America and portions of Africa. He came to the United States from South America, landing in San Francisco on Jan. 19 of this year. He started across the continent and is now some 600 miles ahead of his schedule. In the western part of the country he followed the railroad tracks and in the east he kept to the highways.

The transcontinental traveler writes his publishing house every two weeks and receives his orders from them. He carries a large scrapbook in which is stamped the seals of the various states which he visits and the signatures of the executives of the states. Among the names to be found in his book are those of President Taft and Vice President Sherman.

The globe trotter is not allowed to beg, but works his way by the sale of postcards bearing his picture and a few facts concerning himself and his journey. For these he finds a ready sale, and has but once been in straitened circumstances.

This occurred, by the way, in Boston, the first city in which he was not permitted to sell his postcards on the street. For a time he found considerable cause to worry, but finally saved himself from hunger in time to start for Lowell.

Though never in want, he seldom has much money in his pocket. The largest sum that he has had since being in this country was $13.75.

Once, in Nevada, he was held up by tramps on the railroad, and was forced to give them a portion of his money. That was his only unpleasant experience.

He likes America. He says that it is the best country that he has visited outside of the Argentine Republic. He has not had a sick day since being on the road.

PUBLIC BATHS

Mr. Spero Calls for Contributions

Mr. Albert Spero, the man who started the agitation for public baths, issues the following call for subscriptions to the fund:

Awake, ye citizens of this Spindle City, awake! I say awake from the Rip Van Winkle sleep that seems to hold you like a vise on the subject of public baths.

Don't you realize that what you may do for the cause of public baths you indirectly are doing for yourself?

You know that cleanliness is next to godliness. You know an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

You surely do not wish to be penny wise and pound foolish. Public baths are a requirement in the cause of humanity. No city should call itself a city without them. The city of Lowell is not in a position to give public baths; therefore, it behooves every well thinking and far sighted citizen to see that the city secures this institution, even if the people must dig in their own pockets to secure it.

You know the old story of how many times a pitcher went to the well, but eventually it was broken.

And you know the city of Lowell can go on for years without public baths, but supposing there should suddenly occur an epidemic caused by the uncleanliness of some people?

Supposing that tuberculosis, that dreaded disease, which now prevails to some extent in this city, should take a stronger hold, don't you think that in having public baths it would mean the checking of the spreading of it to some extent?

Awake to the fact that if this city wants to call itself a city that does things, the people should come forward and subscribe and donate to the public bath fund. I ask the charitable people of this city to send in their donation to the local press or to Mr Chase of the Old Lowell bank.

NO VACATION

REQUEST OF FALL RIVER OPERATIVES REFUSED

FALL RIVER, July 9.—The textile [illegible]

tive committee of the Cotton Manufacturers' association today voted not to grant the request of the textile council for a week's vacation for the operatives in the city, beginning the last Monday in August. At a joint conference of the textile councils of this city and New Bedford, held last week in this city, it was voted that each council request the Cotton Manufacturers associations of both cities for a week's vacation each year. It is a foregone conclusion that the New Bedford operatives also will meet with a refusal.

The mills in Fall River are tied up with contracts, especially those concerns manufacturing narrow goods. The enormous sales of 28-inch 64x64s, seven yards to the pound, which were made to the American Printing company call for deliveries during the months of August and September. Other mills turning off wide goods are also fully engaged for the next several months. Some of the mills have contracts extending well into next year. The mills in New Bedford, which usually have their product sold a year ahead, would suffer a pecuniary loss if a week's vacation were to be granted.

EDITOR BELL

SAYS THAT LAWYER PATRICK IS INNOCENT

NEW YORK, July 9.—Clark Bell, editor of the Medico-Legal Journal, makes a positive editorial assertion in the current issue of his publication, just out, that Albert Patrick, now under life sentence in Sing Sing for the murder of Wm. Marsh Rice, is innocent. He bases his statement on what he says is scientific proof. In brief, the argument is that Patrick was never convicted or even tried on the charge of forging the Rice will, thus the motive of the murder is eliminated.

Mr. Bell asserts that the two subscribing witnesses to the will, both reputable members of the bar, now in practice, who were indicted with Patrick have never been tried, despite their repeated efforts to have a hearing. Nevertheless, Dr. Bell adds, the jury which tried Patrick, the judge who sentenced him and the justices of the court of appeals, which upheld the lower court, all believed at the time of the trial that he forged the will whereas, says Mr. Bell, the fact seems proved conclusively that he never did [illegible] for it.

WILL TAFT SIGN TARIFF BILL?

Some people think President Taft will not sign the tariff bill as turned out by the conferees; but in spite of the fact that it does not conform to his views of what a tariff law should be, the probability is that he will sign it as the republican offering to the trusts in lieu of their support at the polls.

NEW ENGLAND'S INDUSTRIAL COMPETITORS.

To maintain the supremacy of the shoe industry and the textile industry in New England in the face of growing competition from the west and the south, is one of the important problems before the people of New England today and one the favorable solution of which depends upon harmonious cooperation between employer and employe, arbitration of differences and steady advancement in technical training with due recognition of merit among the operatives.

The shoe towns of New England will have to look to their laurels in view of the competition by St. Louis and some other cities. They are placed in the same relation to the western cities as Lowell and other mill cities hold to the competition from the southern states.

St. Louis is near the raw material required in the shoe business. It costs money to ship the hides to the east and to ship the shoes back. Whether this be the consideration or not, it is a fact that St. Louis can make certain grades of shoes twelve cents a pair cheaper than can Lynn and Brockton.

The chief difficulty encountered by the shoe industries in St. Louis is that of getting skilled help. A skilled shoe maker is not the product of one year or even of five years. In this respect Brockton and Lynn have the advantage over St. Louis, but both cities have had conflicts that injured their business prospects.

Five citizens of Brockton, appointed by the Brockton city government to investigate the causes responsible for the recent exodus of a large part of the shoe industry from that city, have submitted their report, and it is really interesting as showing to what an extent a city may be injured by conflicts between employer and employes. A brief extract from this report tells the story:

> "Perhaps the chief cause of the more recent industrial depression here, and the consequent departure of confidence, among operatives, manufacturers and the city-at-large, was the failure of the Boot and Shoe Workers union to renew contractual relations with the W. L. Douglas Shoe Co. last November, when the contract with the firm expired. As a result, the company has established five factories in other towns and cities, in Massachusetts, Maine and New Hampshire. But a small part of its manufacturing is done here. Where a year ago 13,000 pairs of shoes a day were made in its Brockton factories, now there are but 1200. Where a year ago 3200 shoe workers were employed, now there are but 300 engaged in making the complete shoe, although there are 500 more cutting stock to be made into shoes in the out-of-town factories.

Brockton will have to adopt heroic measures to overcome the loss of so much of the Douglas factories.

Lynn has had under consideration for some time a scheme for permanent industrial peace, and it is needless to say that in competing with shops in other parts of the country industrial peace is most essential to success. That, we should say, is the first step towards the permanent supremacy of New England in the shoe business. The next step is to advance to high grade work that unskilled help cannot produce.

What is true of the shoe cities in these respects is true also of the mill cities in holding the supremacy of New England in the textile business. We must have industrial peace and we must advance to finer grades of goods in order to beat our southern competitors who have the advantage of proximity to the coal mines and the cotton fields.

Here in Lowell we are well equipped to hold our own against the textile competition of any other city or any other part of the country. We have industrial peace, we have skilled operatives and we have a textile school as good as any in the world, if not the best. That should enable our mills to reach the highest point of excellence in the manufacture of textiles.

The principle of arbitration is being more generally adopted, and with good results. In addition to this we are on the eve of an era of industrial education which is necessary to turn out skilled operatives that can excel in the manufacture of the finest grade of goods. With such advantages and with a permanent bounty from Nature in the shape of cheap water power, Lowell should be able to compete successfully with any mill city on earth.

If the shoe towns preserve industrial peace and provide opportunities for the training of skilled help in the finest kind of work, then they can afford to defy the world. Great results are expected from the industrial schools to be put in operation by the state board of education.

There is one way, however, by which our technical schools hit back at us, as it were. When the students of our textile school graduate, they are free to go anywhere and to become the directors of factories, spreading far and wide, it may be, in the southern states, the practical knowledge they acquired here in Lowell. We shall thus have to compete with the well trained graduates we have turned out, and there is no way of overcoming this condition. Where they go into the southern states, it will take them a long time to train thousands of operatives up to the degree of excellence attained by operatives in a city like Lowell where they have worked nearly all their lives in the mills, improving from year to year.

Another thing that must be considered in upholding the industrial supremacy of New England is, that the individual operative cannot be slighted or ignored. The progress of a mill depends upon the acquirements of the operatives individually and collectively. The mill that offers no inducement in the line of promotion is blind to its own interests, for such a policy will stifle ambition and render all efforts at self-improvement fruitless. The mill that would make steady progress onward towards higher skill must reward merit and offer inducement for self-improvement, as otherwise there will be retrogression instead of progress.

SEEN AND HEARD

The lands and buildings department is about to buy a horse and thereby hangs a joke. Adison Baker has a horse to sell and to James Dow, the inspector of lands and buildings, he said: "Come take a ride with me and see what you think of this horse." Out along the boulevard, Mr. Dow remarked that the horse was "right there, with the berries," but he allowed he was a very homely "critter."

"That's a poor fault in a good horse, or in fact in any animal," said Mr. Baker. "Now James," said he, "you and I are not the best looking men that ever happened, but outside of that we're all right. Isn't that so?"

Mr. Dow allowed that Mr. Baker was right and gave his word of honor, as a soldier and gentleman that he would say no more about the homely appearance of the horse, providing that outside of that the animal was all right.

A woman in the Highlands stepped to her door on the holiday, and found there a neighbor's daughter, a serious little three-year-old.

"Is Elsie at home?" lisped the little guest. "No, she's away on a visit," was the kindly reply.

"I like Elsie," said the tiny maid, her big eyes reflecting her intense sincerity. "I like you, too. I like your cat, Rogue. Why," she concluded in a burst of optimism, "I like most everything but wild beasts."

"Do you want some money for the monkey?" asked the father.

"Oh, goodie!" cried the little maid, and she gleefully dropped a few pennies in the cup.

She sat with her face wreathed in smiles till the music stopped, and as organman and monkey started away the tears fell fast.

While "Johnnie" McNamara was on his way to the business centre of the city a few mornings ago he was accosted by a fellow with a generous sized jag. Mr. McNamara lives way out in Bridge street and it was while passing a field that the fellow spoke to him. "Will you tell me if that man lying there in the field is dead?" he said. Following the direction in which the fellow's finger pointed, Mr. McNamara discovered a "knocked down" scarecrow. "That's only a scarecrow," said Johnnie, "it's dead because it never was alive."

The man who accosted Johnnie breathed easier. "Well, it's the form of a man's isn't it?"

"All scarecrows are as a general rule," said Johnnie.

"I'm glad of that," said the stranger. "I've been drinking and I was afraid I only imagined I saw a form in the field. You know what I mean?" Johnnie allowed that he did and pursued the even tenor of his way."

GINGLES CASE

LAWYER AND POLICE CAPTAIN CLASH

CHICAGO, July 9.—The defence in the trial of Ella Gingles for stealing lace from Agnes Barette, her former employer, closed yesterday when P. P. O'Donnell, the girl's lawyer, and Captain P. D. O'Brien of the detective bureau, accused each other of underhand motives in the case.

Captain O'Brien testified that during a conversation he had with Attorney O'Donnell Wednesday night, the lawyer said that he did not believe some parts of the girl's story.

The testimony of the police captain and of nurses at the Frances Willard hospital, where Miss Gingles was taken after the Wellington hotel incident of February 16, showed glaring discrepancies in the girl's story of the alleged attack in the hotel bathroom.

With the rebuttal testimony today, Agnes Barrette will deny the allegations that Miss Gingles has directed against her. Miss Barrette wept loudly in court yesterday when Assistant State's Attorney Short said that justice would be done Miss Barrette.

LEGISLATORS

WANT USE OF MAILS DENIED TO COTTON EXCHANGES

ATLANTA, Ga., July 9.—The house adopted a resolution yesterday directing Georgia congressmen and senators to favor measures denying the use of the mails to the New Orleans and the New York cotton exchanges.

Another resolution was adopted calling on the national government to put the cotton producers on the same level with the cotton buyers by collecting and publishing information about the supply and demand for cotton similar to the reports now issued regarding the growth of the cotton crop.

SUPT. WHITCOMB

Favors Vacuum Cleaner for Schools

Dropping in upon A. K. Whitcomb, superintendent of schools, at his office in city hall today, the Sun reporter found him busily engaged in the perusal of the only school board journal published in America. Asked if there was anything of interest for the press, Mr. Whitcomb allowed that news was a little bit on the ragged edge, so to speak.

"This is the only school board journal printed in America," said the superintendent, as he held the book for the reporter to gaze upon, "and every member of the school board and the superintendent should have it. I have subscribed for it at my own expense, but perhaps some might think that the city should furnish them.

"There is never an edition of this journal that does not contain something of great interest to us and, for that matter, to the public at large. One finds versions, opinions (including supreme court opinions), suggestions, improvements, etc., from all over, and it's mighty interesting and instructive."

Mr. Whitcomb was reading an article on school vacuum cleaning and he referred to it. He called the reporter's attention to the way that the schools are swept at the present time. The janitor sweeps his school about twice a week. He uses an 18-inch brush that he pushes along, and the expert janitor is an expert sweeper, and he makes pretty fast time.

"Some of the janitors," said Mr. Whitcomb, "use coverings over their mouths and nostrils to protect them from the dust that hangs in clouds about the room. The janitor waits an hour for the dust to settle and at the end of that hour the dust that hasn't settled on the furniture is on the floor. He brushes the desks and chairs with a feather duster and lets it go at that in fact, it is all that he can do.

"We are using and have been using for some time a dustless duster, so-called, and while it is an improvement on the old feather duster it is not just what the name implies. The duster is chemically prepared and is sanitary and antiseptic. It absorbs the dust fairly well, but I have always had in mind that sooner or later someone would invent a vacuum cleaner for the schools, and I see by this article that there is one in the market.

"I believe that vacuum cleaning in schools is one of the most important measures in sanitary betterment that has ever been worked out. It takes the dust out of the school, or, at least, it should if it works properly, instead of leaving it to flicker about and to be absorbed by the pupil as under the present brush and duster system."

Among other things in the School Board Journal, to which Mr. Whitcomb called the reporter's attention, was the following joke:

Teacher—"What is the meaning of elocution, Harold?"

Harold—"It is the way people are put to death in some states."

Seeing that Harold was a pupil, we will have to admit that there is "some class" to the joke.

"RUM WAR" RAGING

Every Dealer in Bangor and Vicinity is Threatened

BANGOR, Me., July 9.—The force of 11 Sturgis deputies now at work in Bangor and vicinity since July 1 is beginning to make itself felt in the "liquor zone." The raids have ranged from a visit of the entire delegation to a leading hotel and the bringing of H. C. Chapman into court down to raids on the smallest dives and kitchen bars in the "Devils half-acre."

On Wednesday a sensational raid was made on an express company when bars and axes were used to break down barriers, when a large quantity of liquor was seized and M. J. Buckley held under bonds. A raid on a bottling concern operated by Max and Hiram Dennis on French stret disclosed a pipe lengling from three barrels of ale, under the street presumably, to some saloon, but the deputies were unable to follow the pipe. The Dennis brothers were fined $100 and costs or 60 days in jail, from which they appealed.

Of five cases in court Wednesday, the Sturgis deputies secured convictions in all. Dennis McGuire and Jeremiah Clifford of Bangor and Frank Violette and George King of Orono were fined $100 and costs or 60 days in jail, except Violette, who got the fine and the jail sentence, charged with a second offence. All appealed and furnished bonds.

The "rum-war" has driven a few dealers who have been running a bar in connection with other lines out of business for a time at least, but thus far the town is far from "dry." Many places raided stock up again inside of an hour.

One of the deputies said today, "The only way we can stop liquor being sold in Bangor, at this time, is to place a deputy in front of every place and let him follow every customer in. We are however, securing a large number of cases for the grand jury to consider and for the attention of the county attorney.

"We expect to have from one to half a dozen cases against practically every dealer in the county for the August term of court. Some are extremely hard to catch, as they employ watchers and are tipped off by the 'wireless,' as they call it, but we get some of the most crafty after a while.

"We have evidence against practically every dealer in town—enough to send all to jail. That is about all that we can do. With a long time to stock up while everything was 'wide open,' and with hundreds of barrels of liquor hidden about the city, it is difficult to produce anything like a drouth for a time, although we have reduced the stock some.

"We get a vast amount of volunteer information from anonymous parties about 'hides' and people who are doing business, mostly sent to us probably from spite. In some cases an elaborate chart or map of the 'hides' is sent us. We use some of this information in connection with what we already have, but as a general thing pay but little attention to the unsigned communications.

"We have, however, made some successful raids on information furnished by outsiders and have rarely been mistaken. I do not know how long this is to be kept up and the stay here is indefinite as far as I know."

Under the new law the county attorney may be removed if he doesn't prosecute liquor cases upon the evidence presented.

U. S. SENATE

Passed the Tariff Bill Late Last Night

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The tariff bill passed the senate after 11 last night by a vote of 45 to 34 republicans voting in the negative were Beveridge, Ind.; Bristow, Kas.; Brown, Neb.; Burkett, Neb.; Clapp, Minn.; Crawford S. D.; Cummins, Ia.; Dolliver, Ia.; La Follette, Wis.; Nelson, Minn.

The senate sat continuously yesterday from 10 o'clock in the morning until late last night, stopping neither for luncheon nor dinner. Most of the many speeches during the day and evening were brief and in the main the day was devoted to action upon amendments.

The most interetsing occurrences of the sitting were the adoption of amendments by Senator Bradley of Kentucky, and by Sen. Curtis of Kansas, the former exempting tobacco "in the hand" from the internal revenue tax of six cents a pound, and the latter placing a countervailing duty on crude petroleum shipped from countries which impose duties on oil importations from the United States. The action on tobacco was a real surprise. The senate has frequently refused to remove the tax.

A large number of minor amendments were added during the day by the finance committee, but most of the changes suggested by other senators were tabled.

The closing scenes in the senate chamber were tame indeed. Mr. La Follette's speech was earnest, but not especially animated. He had a slim audience on the floor and the galleries were not crowded. Senators remained in their seats alone because required to be there to vote.

The result of the vote on the bill had been long discounted as there was no doubt of its passage by the usual finance committee majority.

The vote in detail:

Mr. Aldrich declared that the pending bill was a fulfillment of the party's pledges. If senators wished to vote against the bill, he said, they should not attempt to speak for their party.

"I have listened with deep interest to the fearful and prophetic funeral oration," said Mr. Stone from the democratic side of the chamber. He declared it reminded him of the old hymn "Hark, from the Tomb a Doleful Sound."

Mr. Crawford protested vigorously against any attempt by Chairman Aldrich to prevent republican senators from the exercise of their judgment.

"Am I not a good loyal member of my party?" asked Mr. Crawford. He purposed to exercise his judgment and to follow his convictions in voting upon the bill.

Senator Clapp also joined in the protest against any effort by the senator from Rhode Island to control his actions.

"I am neither stung, silenced nor entombed by the words of the senator from Rhode Island," said he.

"It will take more than the senator from Rhode Island to read the state of Minnesota out of the republican party," said Mr. Nelson amid applause, which called down the gavel of the vice president with an announcement that such expressions were not permitted. He said he did not care to be lectured by the senator from Rhode Island.

The bill was then put on its passage. It was passed by a vote of 45 to 34.

Upon motion of Mr. Aldrich the vice president announced the senate conferees as follows: Senators Aldrich, Burrows, Penrose, Hale, Cullom, republicans; and Daniel, Money and Bailey, democrats.

The senate adjourned at 11.18 o'clock.

TARIFF BATTLE

Is Shifted to the House of Representatives

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The scene of the great battle over the tariff bill shifts now from the senate to the house of representatives. The members of the house rallying to the call of the whips flocked from all directions to Washington yesterday and today, and the outlook this morning was that when the house convened at noon there would be a full attendance on both sides to welcome the bill over which the senate wrestled until nearly midnight.

The final vote in the senate passing the bill by a vote of 40 to 34 was announced at 11.15 p. m. after a weary day of protracted debate which was almost devoid of animation until within a few minutes before the close, when there arose a sharp controversy over the party standing of the insurgent republican senators, several of them hotly resenting being "read out of the party" by Senator Aldrich, who disclaimed any such intention.

The house had arranged yesterday to be in session at noon today in the hope that the bill could be received from the senate by that time and there was prospect of a full attendance in anticipation of its arrival. It early came to be understood, however, that the measures probably would not be received during the day because of the laborious task imposed upon the senatorial clerical force in the enrollment of the other body. While there was disappointment over this prospect, the members of the house found satisfaction in the probability of receiving the bill tomorrow, which would enable the house to send the measure to conference before the close of the week.

The house committee on rules met after the house took a recess and decided to bring in an order providing for the reference of the bill to a committee on conference as required by the senate, the house meantime disagreeing to the senate amendments. The committee also decided that there should be a debate of one hour and a half on this order. The decision is due to the fact that there are still some absent members of the house for whose arrival the leaders on both sides prefer to wait before taking a vote.

STATIONARY ENGINEERS

SPRINGFIELD, July 9.—With between 300 and 400 members in attendance, the Massachusetts Society of Stationary Engineers opened its annual convention in this city today. W. H. Damon, state treasurer, presided and a welcoming address was made by Mayor Wm. E. Sanderson. State Deputy E. H. Kierney responded to the mayor's greeting and the convention at once proceeded to the election of officers and other business of the organization.

THE AUTO COURSE

Work of Repairing Will Soon Start

The work of preparing the race course for the automobile races will be begun next week when big gangs of men will start in on the boulevard and Varnum avenue. The oil to be used on the course has been purchased and Supt. Putnam said today that after the oiling a two-inch coating of gravel would be added. Mr. Putnam said he had not received any instructions as to banking the course but he allows that such instructions would come later.

Two New Houses

Frank Parker has been granted permits to build two one-family houses in Bennett street. The estimated cost of each house is $2,000.

Bids Were Open

Bids for 100 bushels of oats, one for the fire department and two for the charity department were opened in the purchasing agent's office this forenoon. The contract went to Wilder and Wotton.

The contract for 50 bushels of potatoes and 12 barrels of rolled oats for the city farm went to Caleb Smith.

BODY RECOVERED

PENSACOLA, Fla., July 9.—With the bones stripped of flesh by alligators, the body of Herman Wilson of Chicago, was found yesterday in Clear lake, two miles from Camp Walton, a summer resort where Wilson had been residing with his mother for the last few months. Not knowing that the lake contained hundreds of alligators, Wilson went in for a swim. He had been missing four days.

YOUNG TORNADO

Did Great Damage Near Portalnd, Me.

PORTLAND, Me., July 9.—Much damage in the vicinity of Gray was done by a young tornado late yesterday. Roofs were taken off barns, a hayfield was cleared of eight tons of hay cut in the forenoon, an eighth of an acre of young pines was levelled and small apple trees were torn up by the roots. Telephone wires were badly mixed.

LAKEVIEW THEATRE

At Lakeview theatre this week, Jas. Kennedy, supported by the Flynn stock company in "Jack Swift," continues to draw large and well pleased audiences. The play is proving to be one of the best so far offered by this company and Mr. Kennedy, by his excellent work, is adding many new admirers to his already large following and the supporting company are seen to good advantage in the current bill. Next week the play announced for Lakeview is an Irish comedy drama "A True Irish Gentleman" in which Mr. Kennedy is seen in the role of a warm-hearted Irish lad who comes to America in search of his fortune. It is said that Mr. Kennedy is seen at his best in Irish parts and the supporting company will be cast to advantage. Matinees are given daily except Monday at Lakeview.

REV. MR. BARTLETT COMING

SOME MILL NEWS

Electricity Taking Place of Steam

PLANT INSTALLED IN TREMONT AND SUFFOLK

Statements Filed by Local Mills—Tremont and Suffolk Declares Dividend—Other Mill News of Interest

"Within the last four or five years," says Fibre and Fabric, "there has been a quiet movement among New England textile mills, which, in its natural working out, means the very general substitution of electricity for steam."

Among the mills to adopt electricity, although it has not altogether taken the place of steam, is the Tremont & Suffolk mills of this city. The turbine and electric drives recently installed are giving splendid satisfaction.

At the present time there are no less than 40 New England cotton mills which are either using or have orders for installing steam turbines for the generation of motive power to operate their plants. The aggregate steam turbine capacity of these 40 mills is nearly 100,000 horsepower, or exactly 98,150. A year ago there were but 22 mills, with a total of 41,600 steam turbine horsepower capacity. Five years ago the mechanical operation of New England cotton mills was almost entirely dependent upon steam or water power. Numbered among these mills are some of the very largest and most important in the country, such as the Amoskeag (which is using 3000 horsepower, generated by turbines with provision for an ultimate enlargement to 10,000 horsepower), the Arlington mills, the Nashua mills, Pacific mills and Tremont & Suffolk.

In still another way are the cotton mills of New England making use of electrical apparatus for power purposes. In many cases, where power is generated by water or steam, electric motors are used for the delivery of power. At present fully 175,000 horsepower is delivered by motors in New England mills alone, and in the entire country there is some 750,000 horsepower so delivered. The increase in the use of motors has shown a yearly average gain during the last three years of 30 per cent. better than a 100 per cent. increase in the three years.

Vacations Refused

In reply to a communication from the joint textile councils of Fall River and New Bedford, Mass., asking for a week's vacation to begin the last Monday in August each year, C. M. Hathaway, secretary of the Cotton Manufacturers' association, has written to Secretary Taylor, of the Fall River Textile council, stating that it would be impossible to grant the request. The letter follows:

"July 6, 1909.

"Thomas Taylor, Esq., Secretary Fall River Textile Council.

"Dear Sir—Your letter of July 1, containing a request for a holiday of one week, to begin the last Monday in August each year, has been received by the committee. After due consideration, they unanimously decided that it would be impossible to grant the request.

"C. M. Hathaway."

It is expected that the machinery in the new addition will be in operation about August 1.

Assets of the company were in the neighborhood of $400,000 and liabilities $200,000. The troubles are said to be due to inability to realize promptly on outstanding accounts.

Construction work will in all probability be started early in October and it is expected the building will be ready for operation at the end of December.

is making a novel display of artistic advertising in its Central street window, this week. The exhibition consists of a series of newspaper illustrations many times enlarged (each picture being about 2½ by 3 feet) which have appeared at different times this season in connection with their advertisements in The Sun. They are well known subjects, true to life and show a most careful study. They are the work of a prominent New York artist, and are made especially for "Hart, Schaffner & Marx." The pictures portray "The Marathon Race," "The Baseball Game," "The Memorial Day Parade," "The Fourth of July Orator." In examining the pictures you will see many old friends and situations that are familiar to us all. There is also shown a picture of "The Home of Hart, Schaffner & Marx," now being erected in Chicago, also a separate picture of "The Main Entrance," which is of unusual beauty and artistic design. The building is in many respects one of the finest and most remarkable business buildings in the world. It will be 18 stories in height and afford a floor space of over eight acres, the floors on which the clothing is carried are absolutely dust proof. This is accomplished by sealing all the windows and passing the air through water before entering the building; a ventilating system of the same kind will be provided for the health of the employes. A refrigerator system will cool the air, and sterilize and cool the drinking water. There will be pneumatic tubes for sending the mail; spiral chutes for handling the freight, and many other features of modern equipment.

The Talbot Clothing Co. makes this exhibit in connection with a special display of "Hart, Schaffner & Marx" fine suits which are advertised at a special price in this issue. The pictures as well as the suits are well worth a trip to the store to examine.

LAID UP 3 MONTHS WITH AN ULCER

On Ankle—It Was Very Bad and Only Got Worse Under Treatments—Cuticura Soon Healed It—Baby's Head Freed from Stubborn Scurf by Cuticura Soap.

TWO ECONOMICAL CURES BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"My case was a very bad ulcer sore on my ankle and I was laid up three months with it. I was reading an advertisement in the newspaper one day about the Cuticura Remedies so I purchased a cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and a large bottle of Cuticura Resolvent. After using one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment my ulcer was healed, by washing twice a day with the Soap and using the other remedies as directed. Before I used the Cuticura Remedies my sore was getting worse all the time under other treatments. Furthermore we have a baby boy here and we have found that Cuticura Soap has been a fine thing for him. He had scurf on his head and we tried every way to remove it but failed until we used the Cuticura Soap which removed it almost at once. George M. Hall, Brushton, N. Y., Dec. 24, 1908."

CURED FALLING HAIR

And Itching Scalp with Cuticura.

"Some months ago I suffered with a bad form of scalp disease. My hair was falling out and my head itched. I read about Cuticura and determined to try it. I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and used them. I continued using the Cuticura Ointment on my head daily and the result was truly wonderful. I still use it occasionally and I always have Cuticura Soap on hand. The cure is complete. Mrs. Amy Geissler, 2018 South Seventh St., Omaha, Neb., Sept. 23 and Oct. 8, 1908."

Cuticura Soap (25c.), Cuticura Ointment (50c.) and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.), (or in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60). Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., 136 Columbus Ave., Boston, Mass.

32-page Cuticura book, mailed free, gives 40 years' experience, treatment and cure of diseases of the skin.

B. & N. CAR BARN

In Lawrence Damaged by Fire

LAWRENCE, July 9.—Fire leveled the building known as the West End clubhouse, on the north bank of the Merrimack river, near the junction of Water street and McFarlin court, yesterday afternoon, entailing a loss of about $1000. The building was owned by John W. Livingstone, dealer in empty barrels. It was originally built for boxing bouts, but was disposed of to Livingstone after the athletic meets were given up.

The structure burned rapidly and the flames communicated with the car barn of the Boston & Northern Street Railway company close by. The side of this latter building was considerably charred. It was reported that boys had a bonfire in the vicinity of the building and a theory is that a spark reached the structure. While the department was at work another alarm came in for a blaze in the dumping ground of the Pacific mills on the opposite side of the river.

FIREMEN'S MUSTER

LOWELL TUBS ENTERED FOR LAWRENCE CONTEST

Already 87 handtubs have been enlisted for the annual muster of the New England Veteran Firemen's league, which is to be held at Lawrence this year. Being so near home, the muster will be attended by the Lowell red shirts, and doubtless by hundreds of people who like the pumping game.

At a meeting of the Lawrence association held to discuss preliminary arrangements, a committee consisting of George A. Merrill, Darius H. Finn, John Mulcahy, M. J. Griffin and Michael Conlon, all well known to Lowell Vets, was appointed to have charge of the muster. Chief Hamilton said that the Chinese consul general would probably attend the meet.

Tubs have been entered from Manchester, N. H., Acushnet, Winchester, Amesbury, Arlington and South Braintree, Mass., Bristol, R. I., Boston and Brockton, Mass., Brunswick, Me., Gardner, Carver, Charlestown, Somerville, Chicopee, Mass., Central Falls, R. I., Fall River, Mass., Providence, R. CANOBIE LAKE

LARGE CROWDS ATTEND THE CANOBIE THEATRE

The present show at Canobie lake theatre is drawing large crowds every afternoon and evening. Since Monday the theatre has been comfortably filled with lovers of good music and they have not been disappointed with "Bradshaw's Troubles," which is being presented this week. There is some class to this comedy and from Haverhill, Lawrence, Lowell, Nashua and the surrounding towns the success of the first week is the one topic of conversation. The installation of a roof over the theatre insures comfort in case of rainy weather and a show can be appreciated just as well at Canobie lake now as in any playhouse in the country. Mr. Lees, who is well known because of his connection with the Colonial theatre in Lawrence, is in charge and he is assisted by John F. Adams of Lowell, treasurer of the Colonial, both of whom are very familiar with the business. The theatrical season gives promise of being the most successful in the history of Canobie lake. Make it a point to go to the theatre at least once a week, and you will never regret it.

TRIED TO ENTER CAMP

The camp on the Concord river in North Billerica occupied by Mrs. Joseph Farley, wife of the well known patrolman of this city, was visited early yesterday morning by a couple of men, but they were frightened away before they succeeded in looting the place.

The camp is occupied by Mrs. Farley, her three children and an elderly woman, Mrs. Patridge.

About 1 o'clock yesterday morning, Mrs. Farley was awakened by somebody trying to gain an entrance through one of the windows. Getting up to investigate, she saw a man at the window, and another a short distance away in the direction of the river. Both fled when they saw they were observed.

The occupants of the camp were greatly alarmed, and Mrs. Farley went for aid to the nearest house, that of Charles Kemp. The town constables and later the Lowell police were notified and a search was made of the woods, but no trace of the men was found.

MACHINE GUNS

Have Been Dispatched to the Collieons

GLACE BAY, N. S., July 9.—Although neither the Dominion Coal Co. nor its striking miners nor the members of the United Mine Workers of America and sympathizers displayed any signs of relenting in their attitude when the fourth day of the great strike opened today developments were expected which would do much to decide which side held the balance of power. The presence of armed troops and machine guns at the collieries tended to curb the riotous element of the striking miners and no repetitions of the previous disturbance were anticipated. It was expected that the question of whether the coal company has sufficient support among the ranks of the provincial Workingmen association to continue to operate its mines would be definitely decided today as all the miners who decided to resume work were given military protection.

BIGAMY CHARGE

Man Said to Have 24 Wives

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9.—John Madson, who is said to be wanted for bigamy in many cities, is in the hands of the police here. The authorities say they have established his marriage to ten women and his engagement and possible marriage to fourteen others. Each is said by the police to have lost money through the acquaintance with Madson. Among those who Madson is alleged to have married are the names of Mrs. Mary Wigginsby of Springfield, Mass., who is alleged to have lost $600 and he is said to have been engaged or married to women in Gettysburg, O., St. Johns, Mich. and Hamilton, Ont. and Germany. Almost without exception Madson's victims have been widows or divorced women of middle age.

ILL FATED MARRIAGE

SPRINGFIELD, July 9.—Mrs. Mary Drown of this city, believed to have been one of the victims of the alleged bigamist, John Madson, under arrest in San Francisco, died at Oxford in the spring of 1905, never having recovered from the shock of her ill-fated marriage. She was about 48 years of age. The man whom she married represented himself as Christian Johnson, a wealthy ranchman of California and it was generally understood by Mrs. Drown's friends that her marriage to the western man was the result of a matrimonial advertisement. Mrs. Drown was married to Johnson who is believed to be Madson, in December, 1901, but separated from him three days later after he is alleged to have taken all her money from her. Previous to her marriage she conducted a dressmaking business. This she sold together with other property she had and it is thought that she turned all her money over to her husband.

THE CHARGES

AGAINST GEN'L HARTING HAVE BEEN SUSTAINED

PARIS, July 9.—Although the result of the government investigation into the charges made by the Russian revolutionist, Bourtzeff, against Gen. Harting, chief of the Russian political police abroad with headquarters at Paris, has not been officially announced, it is understood that the charges have practically been established. Bourtzeff accuses Gen. Harting of being no other than Michael Landesen, alias Petrosky, who was sentenced in the fall of 1890 by the correctional court of the Seine to five years' imprisonment as the organizer of the dynamite plot against Emperor Alexander II. Neither the Russian government nor the Russian embassy in Paris has come to the defense of Gen. Harting, who during his police career has been stationed at various countries under different names. General surprise is expressed here that the Russian government should ask that the Legion of Honor be bestowed on him.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

WORCESTER, July 9.—The fourth day's sessions of the five days' conference on child welfare which is being held at Clark university was chiefly occupied today by discussions on Sunday school work and ethical culture in children. Dr. Edward P. St. John, Hartford school of religious pedagogy, spoke on "A Criticism of Present Sunday School Fads, Curriculum and Grades with Construction of Text Books," Rev. Lester Bradner, rector of St. John's church, Providence; Prof. Charles Foster Kent, Yale university and Dr. David Smuzzey of the society for ethical culture, New York, were the other speakers of the forenoon session.

The interesting addresses on psychology and psycopathy were given at the afternoon session by Dr. Arthur Holmes of the university of Pennsylvania and Miss Julia Lathrop, president of the commision of the juvenile psychopathic institute, Chicago, while Miss Jessie Holder of the social service department, Massachusetts General hospital, spoke on "What is Being Done for Girls Who Go Wrong?"

THE TAFT CHILDREN

BEVERLY, July 9.—Somewhat weary from the festivities of the Lake Champlain celebration, but delighted upon reaching their summer home, Miss Helen Taft and her brother, Robert Taft, children of President Taft, arrived from Burlington at 9 a. m. today and were warmly greeted by their mother and brother Charles.

The big presidential automobile met them at the station and whirled them down to the "summer White House."

The weather along the North Shore since the Taft family took up its residence there has been exceptional and the clouds, the blue sky and the clear atmosphere continued today to the delight of the young people of the family, while Mrs. Taft is showing marked improvement.

THE SAXONIA

BOSTON, July 9.—When the steamer Saxonia reached the upper harbor today from Liverpool she found the big dock which a year ago yesterday went up in smoke and flame completely rebuilt with the most modern improvements for handling passengers and freight awaiting to receive her. Since the fire which swept the harbor front at East Boston a year ago the Boston & Albany railroad, the New England branch of the New York Central, and the Cunard company have built several large docks and have equipped them with the late pattern of freight handlers and other improvements. The Saxonia was the first steamer of the [illegible]

A NOVEL SCHEME

Adopted to Avoid the Prohibition Laws

WASHINGTON, July 9.—A novel scheme to evade the prohibition laws has been devised by the incorporation of express companies which operate between states.

In the last two or three months several such companies have been incorporated in various parts of the country. In every instance the companies do a business close to state lines. None of them has filed with the interstate commerce commission its annual report, and it is understood an effort shortly will be made by the officials of prohibition states to prevent the operation of such companies.

The commission received an inquiry from the Mississippi state authorities a few days ago respecting the operations of an express company at Natchez. Mississippi is a prohibition state, yet it turns out that an express company was organized and incorporated at Natchez, the bulk of the business of which appears to be the transportation of beer and liquors from another state into Mississippi. The beverages are consigned to individuals in Mississippi and are delivered by wagons of the express company.

The curious part of the transaction is that the express company was incorporated by dealers in beers and liquors with the evident intent, according to the Mississippi authorities, of evading the stringent state liquor laws.

A similar case has arisen in Massachusetts. An express company was organized in Fall River and the company filed with the commission tariffs to cover its business. The first tariff, filed on May 22 last, governed principally the transportation of beers and liquors. Since that time additional tariffs have been filed covering the transportation of various commodities and packages and the carriage of money.

It is asserted that the incorporators of the express company are liquor dealers in Fall River who have established an office in Rhode Island, just across the Massachusetts line.

When an order for beer or liquor is received it is filled at the office of the express company in Rhode Island by wagon express. Thus the local option law of Massachusetts is not violated.

Similar devices have been adopted by other express companies which have been organized in other sections of the country.

BARGE WAS LOST

BOSTON, July 9.—The sinking at the Barnegat yesterday morning of one of the barges of the tug Valley Forge which left Philadelphia on the 6th inst. with the Bear Ridge, Barry and Perkasie for this city was reported by the steamer Grecian today upon her arrival from Philadelphia. All hands on the sunken barge were saved by the Valley Forge.

When the Grecian reached the scene the Valley Forge was steaming about amid considerable wreckage, one barge was heading up the Jersey coast under sail while the second barge was a short distance away with the end of her tow line over the bow as if attached to the sunken barge.

Details of the accident could not be obtained and after the Valley Forge had reported that all hands were saved and that no assistance was needed the Grecian steamed for Boston.

A BOULDER

IN MEMORY OF COL. WARNER AND CAPT. BAKER

ISLE LAMOTE, Vt., July 9.—Patriotic women of Vermont today dedicated a boulder in memory of Col. Smith Warner and Capt. Remember Baker, heroes who were associated with Ethan Allen in the battles of revolutionary days along the shores of Lake Champlain as a part of the exercises marking the close of the week's celebration of the 300th anniversary of the discovery by Champlain of the lake bearing his name. The dedicatory address was delivered by the Rev. John M. Thom, president of Middlebury college. Govs. Hughes and Prouty of the New York and Vermont Champlain tercentenary commissions and their guests arrived from Burlington and Plattsburg on the steamer Ticonderoga early in the day. Solemn high mas was celebrated by the Right Rev. Thomas A. Burke, bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Albany, N. Y., officiating, following which literary exercises were held with Gov. Prouty of Vermont presiding. After prayer by Rev. John M. Thomas, the visitors were welcomed to Vermont by Gov. Prouty and Senator Henry W. Hall of Buffalo, secretary of the New York commission. The principal address of the day was delivered by Justice Wendell B. Stafford of the supreme court of the District of Columbia. Gov. Hughes spoke briefly and an original poem was read by Prof. John Erskine of Amherst.

TROUBLE IS LOCALIZED

BOGOTA, July 9.—The friends of peace have requested the president-designate, Gen. George Holguin, to allow them to send commissioners to Barranquilla a town on the Atlantic seaboard, where a revolution broke out last Sunday to advise the revolutionists to disarm immediately. The request was granted and the commissioners will leave Bogota shortly. The government's advices are to the effect that the revolution, was entirely localized to Barranquilla and that there was no fighting.

Gen. Holguin has offered to provide all travelling facilities to congressmen so that they can reach Bogota in time to attend to congress on July 20.

WESTON'S WALK.

CISCO, Cal., July 9.—Edward Payson Weston arrived here shortly after midnight after a walk of 63 miles. After resting until 7 a. m., he left through the snow sheds toward the Sacramento valley. Weston was feeling in the best of spirits and said he expected to reach Sacramento Saturday afternoon and San Francisco the following Tuesday.

Be good to yourself, trade at Coburn's.

BUSINESS BOOMING

North Chelmsford Mills Run Day and Night

George C. Moore is making fine progess with the rebuilding of his mill and the addition thereto and when the work is completed he will have a bigger plant than ever. The old mill was 400 feet in length and this is being rebuilt, while a 200 foot addition is being built adjoining it. A portion of the building is four stories high, while the greater part is two stories in height. The old card room of the Moore mill has been leased by the Middlesex Towel company of Lowell, which started to move in on July 1. The Moore card room will be in the new building. Mr. Moore will use the remainder of the building for wool scouring and will have a larger plant than ever before. His old Baldwin mill is running day and night.

Contractor Jalbert of Lowell has the contract for the brick work on Moore's mill, while Miner & O'Neil of North Chelmsford are doing the woodwork.

DYNAMITE USED

To Blow Up Post Office Material

DETROIT, Mich., July 9.—As an outcome, the police think, of labor troubles a suit case of dynamite was placed under a pile of steel girders today in the yard of the Whitehead & Kales plant on Beecher avenue and exploded. The terrific explosion wrecked windows for a mile around and caused considerable damage to nearby factories.

The girders were for use in an extension to the postoffice, which is being constructed by Whitehead & Kales. The firm has conducted an open shop and has had more or less labor troubles as a result.

JOHN GOLDEN

Spoke Before the American Institute of Instruction

CASTINE, Me., July 8.—The Educational Need From the Viewpoint of Organized Labor," was discussed by John Golden, president of the United Textile Workers of America here yesterday. Mr. Golden spoke in part as follows:

"The educational need of the present day, speaking from the standpoint of the wage earner, is undoubtedly one that calls for more opportunities and better facilities for industrial education. I served on a commission a few years ago, that was appointed by William L. Douglas, while Governor of Massachusetts. This commission was composed of representatives from the state board of education, employers' associations, trade unions, agricultural associations, etc., its duties being to make a thorough investigation as to the needs of industrial education in Massachusetts. Whatever doubts I might have had in my mind as to the need of such education were dispelled very quickly after we started to make our investigation. For instance, we found that 55,000 persons in Massachusetts alone were seeking to acquire the knowledge of this character through the aid of the various correspondence schools of the country. Another thing which we discovered was in regard to the shoe-making industry. I have no doubt you are all aware of the fact that the old system of making shoes by hand has about entirely disappeared; the old-fashioned shoemaker who sat at his bench and made the entire shoe is no more, the whole system has been changed, and the shoe of today before it is finally ready for the market goes through about 80 different processes, or in other words the man in the shoe making industry today is only what may be termed the 80th part of a shoemaker of the olden times. What is the result? A man becomes proficient on a certain shoe machine today, and the chances are he remains on that same kind of a machine all the days of his life, he has little or no opportunity for any other machine; only by adopting a method which is called "stealing the trade," or in other words he moves around from one shop to another to acquire his knowledge of some other machine, until he becomes competent enough to hold his job. It was clearly brought out in our investigation, that 1500 men, and as many women were engaged every year in this task, "stealing the trade" in the shoe industry.

Let me give you a little history concerning the inauguration of the textile schools in Massachusetts, situated in Lowell, New Bedford and Fall River. In Fall River up to about twenty years ago the cotton mills there were chiefly engaged in the manufacture of print cloths; it did not require a great deal of skill to manufacture this kind of goods, but things began to change, there was a demand for other kinds of cotton goods of a finer grade; the south began to be a factor in the print cloth market, Fall River no longer held sway in this direction, and as a consequence, started out in other lines. This required more skill especially on the part of some of the employes; among these latter were the "loom-fixers." These men had to fix the looms that wove the cloth; these machines became more complicated every year as a consequence of having extra attachments added to the looms for weaving the finer fabrics; the loomdixer found himself incapable of doing the work as he ought to, the matter was discussed in his union meeting (these men were nearly all members of the union), as a result an old loom was secured, placed in the basement of the hall where the union held its meetings, and one or two of the members who had come over from England where they had had the benefit of an industrial training in the textile schools there, used to give lessons to the rest of the members in the art of fixing looms, the union paying them a small stipend for their trouble. It was just this kind of situations that first started the agitations for textile schools, where both men and boys could secure instruction along the industrial lines, and when the movement did begin to materialize towards the building and equipment of textile schools, there was no more ardent advocate, nor no more willing worker in the cause than the officers and members of the various textile unions, and when the schools were finally started on their career, many of these same union officials were given a place on the board of management, and are still there, no one to my knowledge ever regretting that he was given an opportunity to co-operate in this grand and noble work.

There are some people who labor under the impression that organized labor is opposed to the movement for industrial education; such, however, is not the case by any means. The American Federation of Labor at its convention held in Norfolk, Va., in 1907, passed a resolution endorsing the movement as outlined by a representative of the National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education, in the person of Prof. Richards of Columbia university, who addressed the convention. At a later convention, held in Denver, Colo., in 1908, it went still further by instructing President Gompers to appoint a committee of fifteen to make a thorough investigation of the whole subject and report at the next convention. President James O'Connell of the International Machinists union, President McNulty of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, along with myself, are on the board of managers of the National society above referred to, and I have the honor also of representing organized labor on the executive committee. Organized labor, however, is strongly opposed to some forms of industrial education; namely, that represented by the "trade school," that guarantees to turn out a young man in a few months' time as a full fledged tradesman; the result of such schools have been to flood the labor market with "half baked" journeymen, to put a premium on securing the job, instead of a premium on the skill necessary to do the job; and, what is worse still, that kind of school has on some occasions supplied strikebreakers when union men have been endeavoring to secure that which they felt they were justly entitled to. And let me ask you why should not the union craftsman jealously guard the only asset he has in the world against those who would not hesitate a moment to depreciate its value. It is the only means he has to maintain his home, and provide for those dependent upon him. If he is somewhat slow in taking up with these new movements, it is because of what he has endured in the past, and because of the fact that he wants to make sure that those whom he loves are not going to suffer.

Organized labor realizes just as keenly as anybody else, that this movement in the interest of industrial education is not a fad, but a stern reality, and an absolute necessity. If this country is to preserve and maintain its industrial supremacy, men and women in all walks of life, irrespective of their station, must join hands together in one united effort. Industrial education is not and must not be inaugurated in the interest of any special class, but for the benefit of all, rich and poor alike must have equal opportunities to secure such education. The same keen desire to see their child "make good" exists in the breast of the poor parents as well as the rich; the door of opportunity must never be closed to any one who is worthy to enter. I believe the question as to the need of such education has passed beyond the debating stage; what is now needed more than anything else is for all classes to get together, and cooperate in this great movement, which is not a question of capital and labor no more than it is a subject to exploit our fads and fancies. I believe we should get right hold of the boy at 14, when his mind is becoming impressionable, when he is just beginning to feel his wants to do something tangible; teach him the "why" and the "wherefore" of certain things and the very best way to do them."

PLAYED IN CYCLONE

Base Ball Under Difficulties at Spalding Park

Game Was Stopped Thrice on Account of Dust—Lowell Defeated Haverhill in a Sharply Played Game

Somebody left the gate open at Spalding park yesterday and as a result there was a draught that threatened to put the game out of commission.

Only heavy weight ball tossers had any license to compete with the young cyclone that enveloped the grounds during the first four innings. Joe Boyle was on the bench and it was a good thing, for the wind would have landed him down in Tewksbury Centre. Young McDevitt had to carry weights in right field to keep on the ground while the only man who really could eat the wind was big Joe Harris.

The storm started just as Umpire Fahey was starting the game. The wind refused to stop and so Fahey had to, on several occasions. The blasts came diagonally across the field from the left field corner to the first base bleachers and the old grand stand and in a very few minutes swept everybody off both. The fans on the third base bleachers didn't feel the wind at all and had great fun watching the others digging out the dust.

The opening part of the game certainly was played under difficulties, but after the fourth the wind discontinued its rowdy tactics and the remainder of the game proceeded quite smoothly.

Al. Whitredge was on the slab in his best form and he pitched a first class game. Huston caught him and was right there with the goods. Young McDevitt in right field contributed a running catch of a line drive from the bat of hard-hitting Joe Briggs that was one of the beautiful features of the game.

The visitors presented Friel on the slab with a new man named Kelly behind the bat. The home team didn't hit Friel hard but they hit in timely manner.

The visitors scored their only run in the first when Courtney opened with a wicked grounder at Venable that was as sure a single as was ever batted. Buck knocked down the ball but threw bad to first, the sphere going clear to the bleachers while Courtney tore around to third. Connaughton hit down the line to Danzig and was out. Merrill flied to Howard. The latter sent the ball home like a shot but the wind got to it and drove it 20 feet wide so that Courtney scored with ease. "Boyle would get that," cried a fan, but no catcher living ever could have got it.

In the fourth with two out, Boardman hit to right field for two bases. Then Demara made a single to left. Bannon in returning the ball sent it to Venable holding Boardman at third. Demara thinking that Bannon would throw home started for second when Venable quickly shot the ball to Fitz getting there ahead of Demara. Boardman tore for home at the throw of the ball and Fitz lined the sphere back to Huston, catching Boardman at the plate in a very pretty and sharp play. In the ninth with Demara on first and none out Joe Briggs hit a line drive between centre and right that looked good for three bases. McDevitt started off at the crack of the bat and caught the sphere on the dead run just as it was sailing by him. It was a peach of a catch.

Howard started the scoring for the homers in the second opening with a single, a hot grounder that struck Demara in the feet and bounded away from him. He stole a base and a sacrifice sent him along another peg. McDevitt got his lamps on the ball and clouted it to the left field fence for a two sacker scoring Howard.

In the fourth Danzig opened with a two bagger and then taking a long lead sneaked to third. The ball was sent to Boardman but he muffed it and Dan scored. In the fifth Lowell got two more after two men were out. Venable got a single and went to second on Merrill's fumble. Buck then worked the prettiest kind of a single, making the base after the ball had been returned to Friel. Fitz was right there with a single and Buck scored. Uniac hit a fly to Briggs who dropped it and Fitz beat it to third. Uniac and Fitz then worked a double steal and Fitz landed home for Lowell's fourth run.

At one time during the game it was impossible to see the pitcher from the grand stand so dense was the dust.

DIAMOND NOTES.

The game at Spalding park tomorrow will begin at 3 instead of 3.15. Haverhill will be the attraction and Joe Harris will pitch for Lowell.

Lowell hasn't a pitcher among the 10 leading twirlers of the league, a fact which tells much of the story. A couple of good pitchers would put Lowell on the map. Billie Merritt, the old leaguer, is scouting for a pitcher for Lowell.—Brockton Times.

Sporting writers all over the circuit are still talking about Monday's attendance at Spalding park.

The wind got under Mutt's home-made chest protector and were it not for the fact that Mutt was weighted down with baseballs he'd have sailed over the grand stand.

When in doubt, send for Mutt. He's the blue ribbon boy of the N. E. bunch.

Old Friend Paddy Duff, on first base for Haverhill was a familiar figure. Paddy fanned out nice just to show that he hadn't forgotten how to do that little stunt.

McDevitt made a running catch in right yesterday that would entitle him to a nomination for the council in ward 16, had he made it in his own town.

Three times Mutt was obliged to suspend hostilities on account of the wind. If the game had been at Washington park the crowd would have gone home looking like a colored picnic.

The wind was the cause of three incipient flames, two under the bleachers and one under the grand stand. All were promptly extinguished.

Manager Gray is trying to sign Jas. Cornare, a southpaw pitcher of Biddeford, Me.

On Tuesday Lowell will play a double-header with Fall River at Spalding park, the first game called at 2 o'clock.

There will be a record breaking crowd at the game tomorrow. "Joe" Harris of the Boston Americans, a former New England league player and a great Lowell favorite will be in the box for Lowell.

At Wednesday's game Henry Garity of the old Washington Tavern and Humidor Gervais bought tickets of admission for a small army of small boys. As they were doing the philanthropic stunt along comes Artist Beckwith of the Lynn daily Item and as a result their pictures were in yesterday's Item. Mr. Garity spent many years in Lynn and his old friends in that city will notice by the picture that he hasn't changed any.

Billy Mulcahey has completely covered the town with baseball flags and will now proceed to cover the fence with ads.

Supt. Warren of the Middlesex Training school has written his thanks to Manager Gray for his invitation to the boys to attend the game. Supt. Warren will arrange a date early in August.

Says the Manchester Mirror:

"What a chance for a big money-maker that Lowell club has got!" exclaimed John Smith, the fashioner of champion baseball teams. "Why, it has the greatest chance in the world. Just a few fast ball players will send the team up the New England ladder, and then Lowell fans will be crazy.

"They tell me they had 4500 people at the Fourth of July morning game in Lowell. That is drawing some. Lowell has everything in its favor for a winning club. Manager Gray, the new head of the club, is popular in Lowell and all through the circuit. He is the old Lowell basketball manager.

"Just to show what a few fast men will do, look at the work of Danzig since he came to Lowell. He is hitting for over .400 and has given the team a wonderful brace. If the Lowell management wants to make all kinds of money, all it has got to do is to step out and buy three or four more Danzigs and it will have all of the other New England league clubs guessing. Nothing in baseball so enthuses the local fans as to see the home team climb, and if it happens to be a tailender, like Lowell, the enthusiasm knows no bounds. Lowell has the opportunity of a life time. The players are to be had if the money is forthcoming, and the time to make the investment is right now."

AMATEUR BASEBALL.

The following letter was received today:

Sporting Editor, Dear Sir—

There has been considerable talk around town in baseball circles as to why the Wanderer-Y. M. C. A. teams have not played off their postponed game of May 22 in the L. & S. league series, and I wish to offer an explanation through your valuable paper.

On May 22 the Wanderers and the Y. M. C. A. were scheduled to clash, it being the Wanderers' home game. The game was postponed owing to inclement weather, with the understanding that it was to be played off on the first open date. On May 31 the Y. M. C. A. secured Washington park, but instead of playing the Wanderers took on the Lowell Americans. On June 12, the next open date in the league series, left open purposely for playing off postponed games, the Y. M. C. A.'s again took on another team. The next open date, which the league has, is July 24, and already almost three weeks in advance the Y. M. C. A. manager has refused to play off the postponed game, which has been hanging over for nearly two months. The boys from the Flats trounced the Y. M. C. A. team the first time they met, winning hands down, 8 to 4, and are confident of repeating the dose. It would seem to be up to the manager of the Y. M. C. A. team to quit sidestepping and forefinishing and play ball.

Sincerely yours,
George Moss, Mgr. Wanderers.

The Wanderers will cross bats with the Indian team on the South common playgrounds Saturday at 3 o'clock and a hot contest is expected as the Indians are playing good ball.

The Lowell Electric Light plant on Perry street is to be represented on the ball field this season; as a team has been organized under the supervision of Mr. Walter Small. Judging from some of the players included in the team it is safe to say that this aggregation will make some of the strong amateur teams step at a fast clip.

Saturday afternoon on the Novitiate grounds at Tewksbury, the O. M. I. Cadets and the Dragons will meet for the second time this season, in a game in the Lowell & Suburban league. The last time these teams met resulted in a victory for the Cadets, but the Dragons have been greatly strengthened since then, and have won their last three games, which has brought them up considerably in the league standing. On the other hand the Cadets have been playing fast ball all season, the Mt. Groves being the only team that has defeated them thus far, and they feel confident of another victory over the Dragons.

"Sully."

CASE DISMISSED

DOE LOSES HIS CASE AGAINST BURKETT

BOSTON, July 9.—The suit of Alfred C. Doe, formerly owner of the New Bedford baseball team of the New England league, against the Worcester New England Baseball club and Jesse Burkett, its owner and manager, for a share of $1750 which the Worcester club received for the sale of two players, was dismissed by Judge Dana in the equity merit session of the superior civil court late yesterday.

The players for whom Worcester received the $1750, were Albert Bushey and Chester Chadbourne, who were sold to the Boston Nationals and Boston Americans, respectively. Doe claimed the players belonged to New Bedford and were transferred to Worcester with the understanding that Worcester would pay their salaries, but would have no power to sell or farm them out without permission from Mr. Doe.

But the players were sold and Mr. Doe claimed a share in the proceeds. Manager Burkett of the Worcester club, in his defense, claimed that Mr. Doe had sold his share in the New Bedford club before the sale of Bushey and Chadbourne was affected and that therefore he had no right to share in the proceeds.

LAWRENCE MEN

Appeared for Col. Ames' Interurban Railway

The railroad commissioners yesterday resumed the hearing on the petition of the Boston, Lowell & Lawrence Electric Railroad company which seeks a certificate that public necessity and convenience require the construction of the proposed high speed interurban between Boston and the cities of Lowell and Lawrence. There were sessions morning and afternoon.

Samuel W. Merriam of Woburn, the first witness called at the morning session, said he had no doubt whatever that the proposed road will prove of great benefit to his city. The proposed rates of fare were explained to him, and he said that while it will cost more to reach the North station by means of the new road, he felt that the people of Woburn will be satisfied with the rates proposed. The rates proposed are 35 cents for a single ride, $1.45 for a 10-ride book and $4.90 for a 50-ride book.

Leonard E. Hennigs, president of the Lawrence Merchants association, said the road will mean a great public gain for his city and its people, as it will result in greatly building up the thinly settled districts around the city proper and give to the people who are now hived up in the hot streets of the city an opportunity to get out into the country districts, establish a home at a moderate cost and secure for themselves some of the fresh air that belongs to them. The city is already densely populated, having 84,000 people in an area much smaller than the adjoining town of Methuen, and with the great addition to this population which must come in with the building of new mills already planned there will have to be some facility afforded for getting out into the country.

Dr. M. F. Sullivan of Lawrence, president of the Merrimack Valley boards of trade, appeared in favor of the new road. He thinks there are very few of the people of Lawrence who do not favor it. He also made the plea of the congested condition of the city, which is bound to increase under present pending improvements. He endorsed practically all that Mr. Benedikt said as to the advantages for Lawrence people, of the new route.

In the afternoon, Mr. Frederick Ayer, formerly of Lowell, and now having property interests in both Lawrence and Lowell, said he believed the proposed electric line, with its 40 minute service from Lawrence and 55 minute service from Lowell would be of great benefit to both cities. While it would naturally draw, at first, from both the competing systems, he believed that eventually, if run according to its program, it would improve rather than injure those interests.

Dr. Sullivan was then recalled and questioned by Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Worran of the Boston & Maine and Boston & Northern roads. He admitted that he is a shareholder in the new road, and took his interest about a year ago.

Mr. Coolidge asked Dr. Sullivan to state what, in his opinion, the Boston & Maine road ought to do to improve its service in Lawrence, and mentioned several things, most of which Mr. Coolidge said, appeared feasible. Later, in answering Mr. Fahey, Dr. Sullivan said that assuming that the Boston & Maine took cognizance of these things, they could not give a service to Boston comparable to that of the electric road. Even if the Boston & Maine gave a half-hour train service unless electrified, their service would not compare with the new road.

YOUNG DESPERADOES

Robbed Hardware Store in Ayer, Arrested Here

The Booty Found on Them on Reaching the Station — Good Catch by Inspector Maher and Officer Cawley

Three would-be desperadoes, who belong in Clinton, Mass., broke into a hardware store in Ayer last night and came to Lowell this morning with their booty, but they had not been in this city long before they were arrested by Inspector Maher and Patrolmen Cawley and Goggin and sent to the police station. They at first denied their guilt, but when put through a rigid cross-examination admitted everything.

This noon Chief Beatty, of the Ayer police department, and William C. Sherwin, of the firm of L. Sherwin & Co., whose place was broken into by the boys, came to this city and congratulated the local police on their prompt work in capturing the boys. Messrs. Beatty and Sherwin with the three boys left on the 1.33 train for Ayer.

The boys gave the names of Herbert Wright, 14 years, 3 Cross street, Clinton; David Dickey, 17, 94 Church street, Clinton, and Robert Gaw, 17, 40 Oak street, Clinton.

Were Acting Suspiciously

While Inspector Maher and the two patrolmen were standing in front of the Middlesex street station this morning they noticed the three approaching. The latter were neatly dressed, but the pockets of their clothing were bulged out as though they had a quantity of stuff about them, and their suspicious actions attracted the attention of the officers, who sent them to the police station.

When questioned as to who they were and where they belonged they gave ready answers, but when asked what they had in their pockets, they said "nothing."

The Booty

They were subjected to a careful search which resulted in the finding of a number of pocket knives, cheap watches, watch fobs, flash lights, tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, automobile goggles. Each of the boys had about $2 in small change in his pocket and Dickey and Gaw had 38-calibre revolvers, but no ammunition.

They said that they had purchased the different articles, the two revolvers having been purchased in Lowell this morning, but the story did not go with the police.

Wright Tells the Story

The two older boys were taken into an ante room while Acting Supt. Welch examined Wright in a rigid manner with the result that Wright broke down and told the whole story.

He said that he and his chums left Clinton on a freight train yesterday afternoon and upon arriving at Ayer decided to break into some store.

They stayed about the town for several hours and at midnight entered a hardware store and stole the articles found in their possession with the exception of the revolver, and came to this city this morning.

Dickey and Gaw were later questioned and when they learned that Wright had told the story they admitted their guilt.

Ayer Police Notified

The Ayer police were asked if a break had been made in that town and a response in the affirmative was received. The Ayer people were informed that the culprits had been apprehended and would be held until they sent for them.

Insured Without License

The case of Edward J. Doyle, charged with unlawfully acting as an insurance agent and broker without a license, was called before Judge Pickman, in the police court this morning. Inspector Michael Barrett, of the state police, appeared for the government and the defendant was represented by James E. O'Donnell.

Mr. O'Donnell entered a plea of guilty for his client and said that in conference with Inspector Barrett, the latter had agreed on the minimum fine, $100, being imposed.

Questioned by Judge Pickman relative to the circumstances connected with the case, Inspector Barrett stated that the defendant had been representing himself to the general agents of an accident insurance company that he was a broker and on the strength of that the general agents had told him to go ahead and get business. Also that he had misrepresented himself to the people from whom he solicits insurance. Instead of giving them the company's receipt for money paid he gave the insured personal receipts.

Since proceedings were instituted against the defendant he has paid back the money on many of the receipts which he issued and destroyed the said receipts.

Lawyer O'Donnell asked for a stay of sentence till tomorrow and this was granted.

Non Support Case

Joseph Boutiette was charged with non-support in two counts. One for non-support of his wife, Fannie S., and the other with failing to provide for his minor daughter.

Mrs. Boutiette testified that she was married to the defendant in 1888 and since that time he has never shown her any affection. The oldest child works in the mill under her husband and the girl turns the money earned over to the father.

During the course of the testimony evidence was brought out to the effect that the defendant and his wife are now living apart.

Conditions at the house reached such a crisis that she left the house, taking her youngest daughter with her. She had $19 of her own and hired a tenement. Later it was necessary for her to take $23, which belonged to her daughter, out of the bank, in order to pay the rent for the house.

On cross-examination Mrs. Boutiette admitted that her husband paid the rent, the grocer, butcher, etc., and clothed the family. She took in sewing occasionally and in that way was able to make a little money for herself.

Boutiette testifying in his own behalf said that he always cared for his family and that his wife left the house of her own accord. He said he never refused to allow her to come back.

Root Beer His Beverage

William Maher denied that he was drunk last night. He admitted that he had had a couple of beers during the day but when told that according to the terms of his parole from the state farm he was to abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors, he said he had drunk root beer and other temperance beverages. Patrolman John Sullivan testified that Maher's sister called him to the house shortly before ten o'clock last night where he found the defendant in a helpless condition. Maher will be returned to the state farm.

Case Continued

The case of James Aloukis, charged with assault and battery, was continued till tomorrow.

Catherine Smith, drunk, was fined $6 and a first offender for drunkenness was fined $6.

Nellie Howard, who pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness yesterday, was this morning sentenced to 20 days in jail by Judge Fisher.

BAND CONCERTS

Ten to be Given on Commons

At a meeting of the committee on band concerts, held last night, it was voted to give ten band concerts by five local bands on the North and South commons, beginning next Sunday night. The Sunday night concerts will be given on the South common and the Thursday night concerts on the North common.

Mr. Vigeant, one of the committee members, was in favor of a concert in Little Canada on the site of the proposed park, off Perkins street. He also favored the giving of a concert in the Highlands, Pawtucketville and Centralville. It was the sense of the committee, however, that concerts on the North and South commons would serve to accommodate everybody and that it would be impossible to arrange concerts in various neighborhoods. So it was voted that each of the five bands in the city give two concerts as above stated.

July Bargain Picking

At the Store of Quality means more, much more than the mere word itself generally implies. We take stock July 31st, our official end of season. The seasons, and the merchandise too, need closer watching than ever before. Style fluctuations these days are so rapid in their fickle movements that we are kept on the "Qui Vive" all the time, and with all our watchfulness it's nearly always a guess, never a certainty on new and novel things. Naturally some items are slower sellers than others; but each item, be what it may, must go at some price the same season as purchased. The money saving opportunities every day from now until Stock-taking time will be interesting and profitable. Watch our July announcements.

THE RESIDENCE OF THE LATE ARTHUR STAPLES AT 55 FRANKLIN STREET, CONSISTING OF A 2½ STORY SLATED ROOF HOUSE WITH ABOUT 3850 SQUARE FEET OF LAND.

On the premises, regardless of the weather, I shall offer for sale the above residence. The house is a 2½-story, slated roof, with 11 rooms, bath, pantry, large wash room, shed and unfinished attic. On the first floor there is a large parlor, with bay window, marble mantel, 2-3 papering, good sized sitting room with bay window and marble mantel and fireplace, very nice dining room with oak floor large kitchen, pantry, bath, wash room, lavatory and back shed on the first floor. There are six very nice chambers on the next floor, one of the rooms having a sink and all connections so that it could be very easily arranged for a two-tenement house. Parlor, sitting room dining room have black walnut doors, parlor doors being very handsomely inlaid. There is open plumbing, soapstone sink and wash trays, and set boiler in the wash room; gas, furnace heat, furnace being practically new. Cemented cellar with brick coal bins. The house is in excellent shape on the inside, and a coat of paint on the outside would put it in first class condition. Now then, while this house has been occupied as a private residence with a very little expense it could be made into an excellent two-tenement house. The lot has a good frontage on Franklin street, with an area of about 3850 square feet. The lot is all fenced in, and there is an automobile shed in the rear, the lot is all soiled and concreted around the house. Now for someone with a large family, or for someone who would like to make an investment in a two-tenement house, they should look this property up. It is in an excellent location and adjoins the former residence of the late William H. Wiggin, and is the second property from Willie street. The property can be seen at any time by calling, and making inquiries from the auctioneer who is in full charge.

THE SUFFRAGETTES

Lost Their Case in Court in London Today

LONDON, July 9.—Sir Albert De-Rutzen, chief magistrate of the metropolitan police court, today decided against the suffragettes on the point raised by Miss Pankhurst regarding the right to present a petition to Premier Asquith, and the court sentenced Miss Pankhurst to pay a fine of $25 or go to prison for a month on the charge of resisting the police. The constitutional question raised by Miss Pankhurst was argued at great length and the magistrate before announcing the judgment said that he anticipated that an appeal would be made to a higher court. Miss Pankhurst, who defended herself, declared that her assault upon Police Inspector Jarvis on the night of June 30, when a number of suffragettes were arrested for trying to force their way into the house of commons was her "gauge of battle to the government and defiance for its unconstitutional ways."

"I was aware," continued Miss Pankhurst, "that when I started that deputation of eight helpless women, many men armed with opera glasses had congregated to watch as though it were a good show, it was bound to result in igniminious humiliation; but until women have the power to elect representatives to parliament it is their duty to maintain the right of a subject to petition the king through parliament If the magistrate repeats his former sentences we will go to prison, but we will not conform any longer with the prison regulations. As political offenders we will insist upon being treated as such and not as ordinary criminals and in the last resort we will act as did Miss Dunlop."

Miss Haverfield, daughter of Lord Abinger, was given the same sentence as Miss Pankhurst.

Both the women notified the court of their intention to appeal from the judgment and they were released by the magistrate on promising to abstain from sending further deputations to the house of commons during the present session. The cases of all the other suffragettes arrested with Miss Pankhurst were adjourned pending the outcome of the appeal.

Followers of Mrs. Despard who have been acting as sentinels around the house of commons for the past week picketed Premier Asquith's residence in Downing street this afternoon, but four of the women were promptly arrested by the police.

ONE YEAR'S SENTENCE

Men Convicted of Conspiracy to Defraud City of Boston

BOSTON, July 9.—A year each in the house of correction was the sentence imposed on Michael Mitchell, former purchasing agent for the city, and Thomas H. Maher, a flagstone contractor, convicted of conspiracy in defrauding the city of various sums in the payment for flagstones. The attention of the authorities was called to the flagstone contracts by the former finance commission during its investigation of the financial affairs of the city and the two men were tried during the June term of the superior court where they were convicted after three weeks' trial.

Efforts to obtain a new trial on the ground that certain witnesses were illegally before the grand jury was made before sentence was pronounced but the motion was over ruled.

JUSTICE GAYNOR

Denied the Motion for the Removal of Thaw Hearing

NEW YORK, July 9.—Supreme court Justice Gaynor today denied the motion recently made before him for the removal of the Thaw insanity hearing from Westchester county to New York county. Harry K. Thaw who killed Stanford White was brought on Monday last from the Matteawan asylum for the criminal insane where he has been confined to White Plains where Supreme court Justice Mills began taking testimony on Thaw's plea for release from the asylum on the ground that he is now sane. Thaw has since by Justice Mills' order remained in the White Plains jail pending Justice Gaynor's decision on the application by the authorities of New York and Westchester counties for a removal of the hearing to New York county and the jurisdiction of District Attorney Jerome. Justice Gaynor in denying th emotion for removal referred to the New York county authorities and after asserting that the numerous expert witnesses whom it was desired to ask a lengthy question would be served by the removal of the case of New York, and said:

"Thaw has now been confined in the state lunatic asylum for a year and the experienced physicians in charge there ought to suffice as experts for the state on the question of whether this man who has already been adjudged a lunatic by Justice Morschauser after a full hearing, has since recovered and may safely be set at large."

WOMEN STRUCK

Fred N. Wier's big touring car knocked down two young women at the corner of Central and Middle streets, shortly after noon today and the accident caused considerable excitement and the collection of a large crowd, though as far as could be learned there were no serious results. Mr. Wier was his own chauffeur and in the car with him were Lawyer John Rogers and Mr. Sanborn, the well known photographer.

Fortunately, the machine was going at a slow rate of speed else it would have passed over the prostrate women. As it was, Mr. Wier stopped the machine the moment it struck the women, and they were picked up directly in front of the wheels. The women were badly frightened but were apparently unhurt, and they walked away when the crowd gathered. Mr. Wier jumped from his seat and went to the assistance of the women. It is said he presented them his card and asked them to call at his office this evening. The women declined to give their names. It is said they were mill operatives on their way to dinner. Mr. Wier said they ran right in front of his machine without giving him any chance to pull up. He rejoiced that they had not been injured.

SENATOR FLINT

Wants Arizona Admitted as a State

WASHINGTON, July 9.—After a busy quarter of an hour given over to the introduction of numerous bills including one by Senator Flint providing for the admission of Arizona as a state the senate today took up the Philippine tariff bill and the Porto Rican measures were urged upon the consideration of the senate by Messrs. Lodge and Depew. Several senators declined to rescind the order against taking up general business during the present session but unanimous consent for the consideration of the insular affairs measure was granted. Explaining the necessity for prompt action on the Philippine bill Mr. Lodge said that as the general tariff bill provided for the admission of products of the United States into the Philippines free of duty a revision of the Philippine tariff must be had now so that both subjects may be disposed of in conference at the same time.

Lowell friends of Rev. Wm. H. McDonough, pastor of St. Mary's Star of the Sea church in East Boston, formerly attached to St. Peter's church here, will be interested to learn that the work of building the new church for the parish is progressing rapidly. The new building is located at the corner of Moore and Saratoga streets and when completed will be one of the finest churches in the archdiocese. The parish has outgrown the present church and shortly after being assigned to East Boston Fr. McDonough arranged the building of the new church.

847 AMENDMENTS

Have Been Made to the Payne Tariff Bill

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Bearing the scars of 847 amendments placed there by the senate the Payne tariff bill today found its way back to the house exactly three months to a day from the time it was put through by that body. Its reception was hailed with mingled feelings of joy and disappointment by members on both sides who in response to summonses from their respective leaders turned out in great force. Chairman Payne of the ways and means committee was prepared again to take charge of the momentous piece of legislation. The clerk of the senate had the bulky document with him and tuned it over to one of the house officials. Two minutes later on motion of Mr. Payne the house took a recess until 1 o'clock in order to permit the committee on rules to meet with a view of deciding upon a course of procedure in reference to the tariff bill to be recommended to the house.

The continuation of the tariff schedules of the bill called forth small interest of senators. Numerous committee amendments not affecting the main purposes of the measure as originally reported by the committee were agreed to. Senator Bulkeley called attention to articles on the dutiable list in the tariff bill passed by the senate yesterday which were placed on the free list in the Philippine bill.

Mr. Lodge explained that such inconsistencies would be corrected.

Offering an amendment declaring the intention on the part of the United States eventually to grant independence to the Filipinos, Senator Johnson of Alabama insisted upon the importance of such a declaration at this time. In this he was upheld by Senator Newlands who said he would insist upon the presence of a quorum.

"The senator knows that we on this side cannot accept that amendment," said Mr. Lodge.

"This amendment is offered," said Mr. Johnson, "because the Philippine delegates in the house fear free trade will make permanent our possession of the islands."

IN THE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, July 9.—When the House of Representatives met at noon today its members possessed copies of the tariff bill as amended by and which passed the senate. Exceeding his best expectations, the secretary of the senate had succeeded in having the bill enrolled with the senate amendments numbered and in shape to be presented to the house as soon as it convened, and Speaker Cannon was informed of this fact and presented with a copy of the bill by Secretary Bennett a short time before the house met. As presented, the bill was a much more voluminous document than when it left the house. It contained 404 pages of print in addition to almost 50 pages of index. There were 847 amendments and they were all accurately numbered so that in every way the measure was found to be in proper shape for consideration by the conferees.

The members of the house began to congregate in the chamber an hour or two before the time for the convening of the session, showing that there was an eagerness to get to work, whether in the hope of making an early disposition of the bill or out of mere curiosity as one member suggested "to see just what the senate had done to it." Each member was soon supplied with a copy and the document was the object of general interest.

The scene in the senate chamber was quite the opposite of that in the house. For the first time for months the senate had adjourned with the intention of meeting at noon. Since the tariff bill has been pending the hour of convening has been either 10 or 10.30 a. m., as the necessities of the occasion required. Today the upper house was as a banquet hall deserted. Not only were there no members in the hall much before 12 o'clock but there were very few around the building and even after the senate convened the attendance was comparatively slender. It was understood in the house that a rule would be brought in very soon after the presentation of the measure there for the reference of the bill to conference and appointment of conferees; but fearing that some other disposition might be attempted, Speaker Cannon declined to announce the conferees until official conditions should make it necessary for him to do so. There were rumors that there might be an effort to instruct the conferees and also that there would be a motion to accept the increases of the senate. There was a special movement toward the hosiery and glove schedules.

Following is the text of the resolution decided on by the committee:

"That the house take from the speaker's table and concur in gross in the senate amendments to house bill No. 1438 (the tariff bill), and agree to the conference asked for by the senate on the disagreeing votes of the two houses; and that a committee of conference be appointed forthwith and said committee shall have authority to join with the senate committee in remembering the paragraphs and sections of said bill when finally agreed upon."

The hour and a half of debate it was decided should be equally divided between the two parties. When the latter had expired Mr. Dalzell of the committee on rules was at once recognized to offer the preamble, for concurrence in all the senate amendments and agreeing to the conference required by the senate. He suggested the rule with a motion for one hour and a half for debate.

This suggestion was not entirely acceptable to Mr. Townsend (Mich.), who wanted the time extended to three hours, but he did not press his point, and Mr. Dalzell's motion was adopted.

After explaining the parliamentary situation affecting the bill, Mr. Dalzell declared his belief that he voiced the sentiment of every member of the house on both sides and of the entire citizenship of the country when he said that what was needed now was a speedy disposition of the measure.

The method suggested by the committee on rules, he said, was in consonance with that need.

The bill as it came from the senate was condemned by Mr. Townsend. As it left the house, he said, it complied for the most part with the republican pledges. But now, he declared, "you would hardly recognize it if you met it in the road."

He did not believe it was ever intended that the senate should introduce brand new propositions which the house had never discussed. "It seems to me," he exclaimed with earnestness, "we have reached the point when our respect for the house demands that our friends at least shall know how we feel about this."

He thought that insofar as the house was concerned there had been undue haste from start to finish.

Mr. Townsend created a scare when he declared that in the course of debates in the senate the house and the ways and means committee had been openly insulted. He insisted that the bill ought to be controlled by the house subject to such amendment such as the senate rightfully could make and not by a conference committee. The bill, in the opinion of Mr. Fitzgerald, who opposed the rule, was about as bad a piece of legislation as it would be possible to make in any legislative body. He hoped there would be aroused throughout the country a resentment such as would make it impossible to put some of the senate amendments into effect. The first open evidence of an intended revolt on the republican side was made manifest when Mr. Mann protested vehemently against the amendments fixing the duties on wood pulp and print paper.

There were but two states that would benefit by such a protection, declared Mr. Mann. "I give notice now," he exclaimed, "that if these two states write the paragraph in the conference report on print paper and wood pulp in the interest of these states and against the interests of consumers of paper and the manufacturers of paper in the rest of the nation, so far as I am concerned I shall swallow my desire to stand with the organization of the house in my desire to prove that the republicans are able to write a tariff bill and vote against the conference report."

The ice having been thus broken Messrs. Davidson, Wis., and Douglas, Ohio, two other republicans were if anything even more outspoken in their opposition than was Mr. Mann. The Ohio member was especially antagonistic. He would oppose the bill as amended, he declared. Should it be defeated there would, he said, still remain the Dingley law, "a law under which this country has prospered for 12 years as no country on the face of the earth has prospered."

TRAIN SERVICE

In Kansas is Greatly Improved

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 9.—All streams in this section today were either falling or had become stationary and there were no indications of rain. Train service was improved but schedules still were far from being adhered to. No additional loss of life was reported.

At Pattonsburg and Chillicothe, Mo., and vicinity there were many scenes of desolation as the people moved back to their mud-filled homes. Some apprehension was felt for many farmers and their families living in the country surrounding Chillicothe. The Grand river there was still miles wide and many farmhouses were yet under water. Livestock and crops have been swept away and it is not known if all persons had succeeded in gaining the hills. At Topeka and Manhattan the waters continue to fall and all fear of further flood damage has been dissipated.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS

NEW YORK, July 9.—Despatches to R. G. Dun & Co. indicate further gains in the business world and a promising crop outlook creates a general feeling of optimism in trade circles. Boston reports a remarkably active retail business which is being reflected in greater activity among jobbers in all lines.

Wholesalers are busy for the season and producers express satisfaction with the situation in fact prospects in all divisions are considered very bright.

Bank exchanges this week at all leading cities of the United States aggregate $2,218,858,267, 19.7 per cent. larger than those last year and 14.9 over the same week in 1907.

GETS A DIVORCE

Decree in Favor of Mrs. Aldrich

PROVIDENCE, July 9.—With her husband in Mexico, Mrs. Mary Larned Dorance Aldrich, wife of Edward Burgess Aldrich, eldest son of U. S. Senator Aldrich, was granted a divorce on the ground of nonsupport and was awarded the custody of their 15-year-old child, Susan Katherine Aldrich, the husband being ordered to pay $10 a week for the support of the child. Mrs. Aldrich asked for no allowance for her own support and received none.

The petition of Mrs. Aldrich was a cross-petition filed in the suit of her husband against her for divorce on the ground of desertion. Aldrich's petition was dismissed and denied by Judge Brown. The case was not contested. Aldrich's petition was filed May 10, 1909, alleging that his wife had deserted him and he asked for the custody of the child. Mrs. Aldrich's motion alleged that for more than a year he had neglected to provide for her. In a deposition which was taken June 23 she stated that so far as she knows he is in the rubber business in Mexico and has been for six or seven years. She deposed that she had paid all the household bills herself during the past year.

The Aldrichs were married in St. John's Episcopal church Nov. 25, 1896. The first petition for divorce was filed by Mrs. Aldrich in May, 1904, but was continued.

BLAMES BROTHER

Worcester Man Accuses Him of Larceny

WORCESTER, July 9.—Louis R. Segel of 37 Orange st., aged 21, has the umbrella record beaten a mile, according to developments in a charge made against him yesterday by his brother, Abraham S. Segel, an umbrella manufacturer at 56 Coral street. Louis had 100 of the rain-shedders laid by for a rainy day or for some other purpose, when his room was searched by the police yesterday.

According to Abraham, he has been missing umbrellas from his stock with such regularity that it became too noticeable and his suspicions were directed to his younger brother. He had a search warrant issued for a look through his brother's room and there the searching officers discovered the big supply. Abraham then had a warrant issued for Louis' arrest and he was locked up.

OUTING AT CANOBLE LAKE

The boys of St. Louis' parish enjoyed an outing at Canoble lake park yesterday. Rev. Frs. Jacques and Fortier and Mr. Henri Fillon and Mr. Joseph A. Desroslers accompanied the boys. Arriving at the grounds the boys entered into a varied list of sports. At noon there was an intermission for dinner and in the afternoon the sports were resumed, the return trip to the city being made in the early evening.

BOAT WAS UPSET

Four Boys Were Rescued From Drowning

CONCORD, N. H., July 8.—John Johnson, aged 16; John McAuley, 15; Joseph Murphy, 15, and Burt McAuley, 11, all had a very narrow escape from drowning while running a sailboat on Penacook lake yesterday. The boat was overturned in a squall and it was more than an hour before the boys' cries for help were heard.

L. P. George of Ashland, who was at work at the Derby cottage, finally rescued the boys with a power boat. The youngest of the quartet had gone under water twice when Mr. George reached him. All the boys were much exhausted from their experience.

City Marshal Kimball and Officer Bachelder went to the scene in an automobile as soon as notice reached the city and arrived at the lake shore just as the power boat started to the rescue.

AMBASSADOR BRYCE

Spoke at Lake Champlain Tercentenary Celebration

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 9.—Speaking here today in connection with the Champlain tercentenary, the Right Hon. James Bryce, the British ambassador, referred at the outset to the advantage of this, a comparatively new country, in knowing intimately of its earliest development. He said:

You are commemorating, and it is most fitting you should commemorate a great event with which the history of your noble state begins, the discovery of the lake which extends all along its eastern side and is one of its greatest charms. You have a notable advantage over European nations in knowing so much more about your earlier days. We know little, and the changes that have made Great Britain what she is have been slow and gradual. Here when I think of what this region was 300 years ago I can hardly believe that such a change can have been accomplished in so short a time. What an awe inspiring and terrible wilderness these shores were in 1609. What darling was needed to explore these vast and solitary forests, solitary because the Indian tribes had made them so by incessant wars! What a spirit the men had who in their frail canoes traversed these rivers and lakes, or followed a difficult trail through woods full of wild beasts, or in which savages, more dangerous than wild beasts, lurked in ambush, with no guides except Indians, often treacherous, and no hope of succor from friends left behind. When Champlain first glided over these waters, there was not a European nearer than Virginia, where the English had made their little settlement two years before, and Champlain assuredly did not wish the English any nearer. Only in this same year, 1609, did Henry Hudson, our own famous navigator, enter the river that now bears his name.

They were wonderful men, these explorers of the New World, beginning with Christopher Columbus and Magellan, a hero not less bold and skilful than Columbus himself. Cabot, Vasco Nunez de Balboa, De Soto, Cortes, Pizarro, La Salle, Hudson are a famous list. Among them our hero of today—Samuel Champlain—stands out as one of the ablest, and certainly one of the best. He was equally skilful by sea and by land. He governed his own colony of Quebec wisely. He described clearly and exactly the coasts along which he had voyaged. He was always ready to fight, but he had no love of slaughter. He inspired confidence in his followers and treated them far better than did La Salle. He thought first of France and of his faith, and last of himself. He was what we call a "fine fellow," and well deserves to be commemorated as you commemorate him today. Let us picture him sailing up the long windings of the river and coming out on a sunny evening upon the shining levels of this vast lake, stretching south farther than eye could reach—the lake which the Indians called the Gate of the Country, Caniaderiguarunte, a noble highway for commerce, but then enclosed by deep and silent forests. What hopes for dominion and trade thrilled his soul! It was the age when the mighty Spanish empire, embracing all the southern part of this continent and most of South America had stirred up France and Holland and England to seek to found colonial empires; and the example of Champlain fired many another French pioneer, till Du Luth reached the farthest corner of Lake Superior and La Salle passing up Lake Michigan struck and descended the mysterious Mississippi.

Of all that has happened since Champlain discovered what was to become the state of Vermont, and of the long process by which this region was filled with the stalwart race of the Green Mountain boys, many of whom have become so famous in your history, I have no time to speak. Leaping across the centuries to see what the shores of your lake are now, one is struck by the thought how different the present is from what anyone fancied it would be, how all the purposes of men are overruled, how little anyone can foretell the results of his own work and the fate of the lands he has discovered. Samuel Champlain journeyed and strove for the dominion of the king of France, for the trade in furs, for the conversion of the Indians. The king of France has gone. The furs have gone. The Indians have gone. The lake seemed a superb highway for trade, and when the first steam vessel was launched upon it in 1808, men must again have expected it to become such a highway. But soon afterwards railways began to be made, and by the time that the lands to the north and south had plenty of passengers and freight to send, the railroads were ready to carry and have since carried both. Now your lake is chiefly valuable for its fisheries, which I trust will be much developed and improved under the treaty which Mr. Root and I had the pleasure of negotiating last year, and for the varied beauty of its winding shores, backed by picturesque mountain groups. It is now, after much strife, a peaceful lake, on whose banks Canadians of English and French speech and Americans dwell in friendship which we trust will never be broken. We may wonder what its fortunes will be, what history has in store for it in the future. I have just spoken of the failure of prophecies, yet am tempted to indulge myself in a prophecy which may be made the more safe because before the time when its correctness can be determined the prophet himself will have been forgotten. The shores of Lake Champlain do not seem likely to be the chosen home either of any great agricultural or of any great manufacturing industry. There are still some forests, and may possibly be mineral wealth not yet revealed. But the greatest asset of Vermont seems to be its men, the race, vigorous in mind and body that inhabits it, and the varied beauty of its wild and romantic nature. As wealth goes on increasing in those regions of the middle west to which nature has given a richer soil and a profusion of minerals, but far less beauty, as well as in the gigantic cities of the east there will be an ever increasing longing among the people to enjoy the scenic loveliness of this land of lakes and mountains. More and more will the Green mountains and the White mountains and the shores of your lakes be the place to which men will come from those crowded regions to seek rest and health and recreation and the joys of unspoiled nature. One who foresees such a future and who himself loves nature would counsel you to bear this in mind and to suffer none of the finest gifts of nature to be lost by any want of foresight. To spare the woods, wherever they are an element of beauty, to prevent unsightly buildings from destroying some exquisite prospect, to keep open the mountains, and allow no one to debar pedestrians from climbing to their tops and wandering along their slopes as men are (most unfortunately) barred for the sake of what is called sport, in some parts of Europe—these are some of the means by which this noble pleasure ground, the most delightful region of eastern America, can be preserved for the enjoyment of your nation retaining some of that romantic charm and wild simplicity which it had when Champlain's canoe first clove the silent waters of your lake.

BRIDE FAINTED

After Marriage Ceremony Was Performed

LEBANON, N. H., July 9.—The marriage of George Walter Terwilliger, aged 27, claiming to hail from New York city, and Hazel Belle Hubbard, aged 19, from Lyme Center, N. H., at the town clerk's office yesterday afternoon was performed after many disappointments.

The couple arrived in town on a morning train and spent all day trying to find some one who would marry them. The man claimed to be a Catholic and the first place visited was the rectory, where they were unsuccessful. Later they visited the town clerk's office and secured a marriage license and were directed to the home of a clergyman, but returned in a short time saying he was not in and they had decided to be married by the town clerk.

Wilbur F. Smith, the clerk, does not waste any time in the performance of his duties and the ceremony was so quickly over that the bride did not realize her position for several minutes, when she calmly walked across the office, laid her head on her husband's shoulder and fainted away. She was quickly revived and the couple left town on the 3 o'clock train south.

WANTS DIVORCE

Man Says His Wife Was Cruel

BOSTON, July 9.—Charles M. Kimball, a wealthy polish manufacturer, well known in Winthrop, Wakefield and this city, has brought a libel for divorce, on the ground of cruel and abusive treatment against his wife, Clara May Kimball.

They were married in East Boston, Feb. 12, 1868. He alleges as specific acts of cruel and abusive treatment that his wife had used language toward him that was wanton, cruel and hateful and has called him various unpleasant names. She also accused him of having been intimate with other women.

He alleges that she dampened the sheets of the bed two years ago so that he contracted rheumatism, from which he suffers even now.

He makes other charges regarding her treatment of their 4-year old child and of threats she is alleged to have made to him. In an undertone he says she would say there was poison in the food he was eating.

She has brought proceedings in equity against him seeking to protect her rights in the polish business which she alleges he has transferred to a corporation. She claims she is largely responsible for the success of the business. There will be a hearing on that bill before Judge Richardson in the equity session today.

Mr. Kimball lives in Winthrop. He filed a bill of specifications to the libel setting out the charges upon which he relied to maintain his libel, on motion of counsel for the libellee. He seeks the custody of the child also.

MERCHANTS' DAY

WAS OBSERVED AT BURLINGTON, VT., TODAY

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 9.—After the events of yesterday when the president of the United States and the British and French ambassador came here to assist in the Burlington celebration in connection with the tercentenary anniversary of the discovery of Lake Champlain, today was practically a day of rest. The customary band concert was given in city hall park in the forenoon and in the afternoon there were trotting races at the tracks of the Burlington Driving club. Today was called "Merchants' day," and special bargain attractions were expected to bring a large crowd of shoppers into the city.

THE CZAR

TO ATTEND THE CELEBRATION AT POTTAVAI

ST. PETERSBURG, July 9.—Emperor Nicholas left St. Petersburg today to attend the celebration at Pottaval of the bicentennial of the battle in which the Russian forces under Peter the Great overwhelmed the Swedes under Charles XII. The imperial train halted at the station of Luminez near Pinsk where his majesty received a deputation of 10 railroad machinists who brought the traditional Russian offering of bread and salt. The emperor shook hands with all the members of the deputation. Later at the station of Stany his majesty received the marshals of nobility, the representatives of the Polish aristocracy as well as nemerous deputations from nearby provinces.

MURDER CASES

To be Tried as Soon as Possible, Says District Attorney

CAMBRIDGE, July 9.—District Attorney Higgins announced today that he would make a strong effort to clear up the four capital cases now pending in the Middlesex superior criminal court during the coming fall.

The murder trials will begin in September when on the 13th James H. Harmon of Somerville, who is under indictment for shooting his sweetheart, Miss Maud Hartley of Somerville on Dec. 28th last will be called to the bar of justice. In October an effort will be made to solve the murder of Annie Mullins in Arlington on March 29, 1908, by placing Peter Delory or Somerville and James Mantir a Greek, of Manchester, N. H., on trial. Delory claims that Mantir killed the woman, but the grand jury indicted both men.

Mrs. Mary Kelleher of Somerville, including her three children, will be tried in November or December, following which case will come the trial of John Wesley Brown the Newton colored man who is under indictment for shooting his sweetheart, Laura Beland last fall.

In addition to the capital trials, District Attorney Higgins will argue before the supreme court against the exceptions taken last spring by Chester Jordan, who was convicted of the murder of his wife, Honora.

GRAND DUKE ARRIVES

ST. PETERSBURG, July 9.—Grand Duke Cyril, oldest son of the late Duke Vladimir, arrived here today with his wife and two daughters and will take up his residence at Tsarskoe Selo. Until recently the grand duke and his family have been denied access to the Russian court on account of Cyril's marriage to the Grand Duchess Victoria of Hesse, who was the divorced wife of the Russian empress' brother. Grand Duke Cyril was first permitted to return to Russia to attend the funeral of Grand Duke Alexis last November. The permission granted his wife to appear in court circles was due to the intercession of Grand Duke Boris, a brother of Grand Duke Cyril.

FIVE PERSONS INJURED

NEW YORK, July 9.—Five persons were injured in a collision between two trains at Sheepshead Bay today.

AGAINST "EVIL SPORTS"

DENVER, Colo., July 9.—Football, Marathon running and such sports as tend to disable the American youth received a rough jolt in the department of physical education of the National Education association today. The place of physical education in the field of hygiene was the subject of William F. Sloenm, president of Colorado college, Colorado Springs.

Ira B. Fee, deputy superintendent of schools of Wyoming, made an attack on what he termed "The rough-house sports." He admitted that there is an element of virtue in football but in the end it is far too rough.

William F. Sutton of the University of Texas led the discussion, and he started the ball rolling by urging that what he termed the "evil sports" be placed under the ban of the association.

In the discussion that followed it became evident that the trend is for a form of athletics which will enable the weaker boys to partake in the exercise which is now dominated by their muscular brothers. The department of manual training held its last session and this time the influence of arts and science upon the rural home was taken up.

PRINCE MIGUEL ENGAGED

LONDON, July 9.—The Austrian embassy here today announced the engagement of Prince Miguel of Braganza, oldest son of Duke Michael, the pretender to the Portuguese throne, to Miss Anita Stewart, daughter of Mrs. James Henry Smith of New York.

Four of the deaths occurred at Tsarskoe-Selo which for years has been immune from cholera. Mme. FOUGHT A DUEL

PARIS, July 9.—M. Caillaux, the minister of finance, who was struck in the face as he was leaving the senate chamber yesterday by Charles Bos, a former deputy, fought a duel with his assailant this afternoon on the Bois Vincennes. The weapons used were pistols and after the exchange of two shots which did no damage the duelists left the field unreconciled.

DYNAMITE CAP EXPLODED

PASCOAG, R. I., July 9.—Picking at the contents of a dynamite cap with a hatpin, last evening, Frederick Nichols, ten years old and son of William Nichols, superintendent of the Mohegan mill at Mohegan, lost the thumb and the forefinger of his left hand when the cap exploded. He is in a dangerous condition. Another boy was near him at the time with another pin and if the explosion had been delayed for a moment he would also have been picking the cap

THEATRE VOYONS.

Motion picture stories almost always tell a tale which points a moral and a good one too. Those shown at the Theatre Voyons, are selected from the latest issues and every care is taken that their influence is a good one. Today "The Message" is an exceptional story picture and every bit of it is plausible and possible in every day life. "Child Love" is a very beautiful picture both as to sentiment and as to real artistic merit. "The Spanish Army" is a scenic film of the best showing several branches of Alphonso's soldiers. There are many other interesting things on the program and the musical features are much better than good.

Chicago, Ill. — "I want to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was so sick that two of the best doctors in Chicago said I would die if I did not have an operation. I had already had two operations, and they wanted me to go through a third one. I suffered day and night from inflammation and a small tumor, and never thought of seeing a well day again. A friend told me how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her, and I tried it, and after the third bottle was cured."—Mrs. ALVENA SPERLING, 11 Langdon Street, Chicago, Ill.

If you are ill do not drag along at home or in your place of employment until an operation is necessary, but build up the feminine system, and remove the cause of those distressing aches and pains by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

INSECT DESTROYER

Device for Slaughter of Gypsy and Brown-Tail Moth

Will be Demonstrated in This City—Insects Killed by Electricity—Brown-Tails are Late in Arriving—Cold Weather Delayed Them—Imported Parasite Doing Valiant Service in Destroying the Moths

If Charles H. Chesley's bug killer works all right and the gypsy and brown tail moths should put in here on their wedding flight, there will be electrocutions by the thousands in Lowell within a few days.

Mr. Chesley belongs in Dover, N. H., and he has doped out something along the line of an invention that he says will do a job on the moths providing they condescend to "shake" with it.

Mr. Chesley explained his invention to the park commissioners some time ago and said he would like the privilege of coming to Lowell and demonstrating his electric bug killer at his own expense. The commissioners couldn't see anything the matter with that proposition and told him to come along.

He arrived here this morning, and, in company with representatives of the park department had a conference with Supt. Hunnewell of the Lowell Electric Light Corporation. In order to demonstrate the machine it was necessary to have the consent and co-operation of the electric light people, and in view of the fact that the park commission was interested to the extent of trying the thing out, Mr. Hunnewell said that his company would be only too glad to assist, and the demonstration will take place Monday or Tuesday of next week.

The Dover, New Hampshire, man's bug killer is about 32 inches long and about 24 inches wide. The frame work is wound with wire and its the wire, of course, that does the trick. The wires are about one-quarter of an inch apart and are arranged in a sort of "coil within coil" fashion. When the insect strikes the coils he cannot but help to form the "sure death" connection and the answer is a dead insect—providing the machine makes good.

The machine will be located on the pole directly below the light, but will be worked on a separate circuit. The circuit that will operate the bug killer will be of about the same power as that used in house lighting. The machines will be put in position by the electric light people.

Brown Tails Are Late

The brown tail moths are a little late in arriving. "The brown tails were due about July 5," said Supt. Whittet of the park department, today, but the weather has been too cold for them. A few have arrived and should we have a few warm days and nights you may rest assured that we would have as many as we would care to entertain.

"Last year they began to fly about the first of the month, and on the 4th, 5th and 6th of the month swarmed about the electric lights at night, and covered the sides of buildings and other things by day.

"My men have reported finding large numbers of caterpillars, both of the brown-tail and gypsy, under the burlap placed about the shade trees in the city and the gypsies show an increase over last year."

When the Gypsies Fly

The gypsy moth does not fly until about July 15. Supt. Whittet has had the city divided into four districts with a man in charge of each district. These men are expected to inspect all their trees daily, killing the caterpillars upon the burlap with a wire brush.

A European Parasite

A parasite that preys upon the browntail and gypsy moths has been liberated in the state, some where in the vicinity of Saugus, but so far as is known they have not made their appearance in Lowell. A circular having to do with this parasite and issued by State Forester F. W. Rane reads as follows:

"Do not destroy these beneficial insects. They are our European imported friends already established in many places, and doing valiant service in destroying the gypsy and brown tail moths. They are very active.

The scientific name is Calosoma Sycophanta. In each stage they are the destroyers of the gypsy and brown-tail caterpillar and pupae." Circulars with pictures representing this insect in different states will be posted in conspicuous places in the near future.

Food for Thought

What will the imported parasite live upon when the gypsy and brown-tails have disappeared, if they ever do? That question was put to Supt. Whittet today, and he allowed it was too difficult to answer. He barked backed to the importation of the English sparrow. That little nuisance was brought here to destroy the canker worm and none can say but he fulfilled his mission nobly. But after he had destroyed the worm, he followed the example of the cow that filled the pail with milk and then kicked the pail over. The English sparrow drove the native birds away and a sufficient number of native birds, it is argued, would solve the problem of the gypsy and brown-tail moths. These insects would furnish excellent food for the native bird. The chances are, however, that the latest European production will have died of overeating before he will have done away with the gypsy and brown-tail.

ATE PARIS GREEN

Tyngsboro Baby Poisoned in Potato Field

Clara Mitchell, aged 1 year, 9 months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Mitchell, of Tyngsboro, died yesterday morning at her parents' home of arsenical poisoning, having partaken of paris green.

On Wednesday afternoon about 5 o'clock, the child's grandfather was sprinkling paris green on the potato plants in a field near the house and had a pail containing a quantity of the poisonous stuff. The little one was playing on the piazza near her grandmother's chair when the latter suddenly missed her and upon looking around saw her in the field. She ran to the little one and found the child's face and hands smeared with the paris green which she had tried to eat. Dr. Lambert was sent for and while awaiting his arrival the mother attempted to relieve the little one but without success. The child died early yesterday morning.

SEN. ALDRICH

GOT AFTER SEN. BEVERIDGE IN SENATE YESTERDAY

WASHINGTON, July 9.—"When the senator wants something done it is for the workman, but when he is opposed to something it is for the manufacturer," hotly retorted Senator Aldrich, late yesterday, in reply to Senator Beveridge's statement in the senate, that the senator from Rhode Island was better informed on the steel mills, but he himself was "better informed upon the conditions and desires of the working people," and that what he was advocating would make more full work days for the workman.

"And the senator from Rhode Island is always for the manufacturer and never for the employes," was Mr. Beveridge's rejoinder.

"The senator is presuming a great deal when he makes that statement," said Mr. Aldrich.

"The senator told me that he had been obliged, in view of the political exigencies"——

Before Mr. Aldrich could proceed further the Indiana senator was upon his feet. "The senator must correct that," he said hotly.

"That is what I understood," said Mr. Aldrich.

"The senator is going very far to repeat private conversation. I did not say political exigencies."

That ended the incident, which had its beginning when the Indiana senator, in urging his provision to exempt tin plate from the drawback clause of the tariff, said in contradiction of his own previous statement, that he had just been informed that there were tin plate mills in Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia and elsewhere which were not in the steel trust. It was then that he made the statement that called down Mr. Aldrich's sarcasm upon his head.

ENGLISH AIRSHIP

LONDON, July 9.—The Daily News which has been one of the chief ridiculers of the mysterious night-flying airship which alternately scared and amused England some time ago, now prints a story claiming that it was a real and great vessel, which, if it has accomplished all the inventor says it has, removes all fear of England falling behind in the race for aerial supremacy. The News says the mysterious vessel is now housed in a huge shed, which is big enough to hold three airships, in a private park, about an hour's ride by automobile from London.

Jos. Mikulec of Austria Left Lowell Today

Joseph Mikulec, who is on a walk of 25,000 miles for a stake of $10,000, arrived in Lowell yesterday and stopped over in the Spindle City until this morning, when he resumed his journey and started for Concord, N. H. Joe has already walked 18,000 miles and claims that he has not been sick one day since he started, nearly four years ago. He says that the $10,000 stake is no "pipe," it being put up by a publishing house in Croatia.

Mikulec is an Austrian, who has the English down better than some who have used it all their lives. He is attired in loose and comfortable clothing for walking and his breast is covered with medals and other insignia. He started on his trip around the world on Feb. 5, 1908, and since that time has covered the greater part of Europe, the eastern coast of South America and portions of Africa. He came to the United States from South America, landing in San Francisco on Jan. 19 of this year. He started across the continent and is now some 600 miles ahead of his schedule. In the western part of the country he followed the railroad tracks and in the east he kept to the highways.

The transcontinental traveler writes his publishing house every two weeks and receives his orders from them. He carries a large scrapbook in which is stamped the seals of the various states which he visits and the signatures of the executives of the states. Among the names to be found in his book are those of President Taft and Vice President Sherman.

The globe trotter is not allowed to beg, but works his way by the sale of postcards bearing his picture and a few facts concerning himself and his journey. For these he finds a ready sale, and has but once been in straitened circumstances.

This occurred, by the way, in Boston, the first city in which he was not permitted to sell his postcards on the street. For a time he found considerable cause to worry, but finally saved himself from hunger in time to start for Lowell.

Though never in want, he seldom has much money in his pocket. The largest sum that he has had since being in this country was $13.75.

Once, in Nevada, he was held up by tramps on the railroad, and was forced to give them a portion of his money. That was his only unpleasant experience.

He likes America. He says that it is the best country that he has visited outside of the Argentine Republic. He has not had a sick day since being on the road.

WOMAN TENNIS CHAMPION TO BE BRIDE OF A BANKER

PASADENA, July 9.—Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss May Sutton of Pasadena, Cal., the champion woman tennis player of the world, to Harry B. Hall, a banker and capitalist of the City of Mexico. The wedding probably will take place in the early autumn. Miss Sutton won the championship of the world in England in 1906 and repeated the performance the following year. In 1907 she was first in the women's championship at Wimbledon and also first in the mixed doubles at the same place. She has been pronounced by nearly all tennis experts as the most phenomenal and scientific woman player that ever lived. The royalty and aristocracy of England took a great interest in her when she was abroad, showering many trophies and gifts upon her. She has more medals and cups than any other tennis player in the world.

PUBLIC BATHS

Mr. Spero Calls for Contributions

Mr. Albert Spero, the man who started the agitation for public baths, issues the following call for subscriptions to the fund:

Awake, ye citizens of this Spindle City, awake! I say awake from the Rip Van Winkle sleep that seems to hold you like a vise on the subject of public baths.

Don't you realize that what you may do for the cause of public baths you indirectly are doing for yourself?

You know that cleanliness is next to godliness. You know an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

You surely do not wish to be penny wise and pound foolish. Public baths are a requirement in the cause of humanity. No city should call itself a city without them. The city of Lowell is not in a position to give public baths; therefore, it behooves every well thinking and far sighted citizen to see that the city secures this institution, even if the people must dig in their own pockets to secure it.

You know the old story of how many times a pitcher went to the well, but eventually it was broken.

And you know the city of Lowell can go on for years without public baths, but supposing there should suddenly occur an epidemic caused by the uncleanliness of some people?

Supposing that tuberculosis, that dreaded disease, which now prevails to some extent in this city, should take a stronger hold, don't you think that in having public baths it would mean the checking of the spreading of it to some extent?

Awake to the fact that if this city wants to call itself a city that does things, the people should come forward and subscribe and donate to the public bath fund. I ask the charitable people of this city to send in their donation to the local press or to Mr. Chase of the Old Lowell bank.

NO VACATION

REQUEST OF FALL RIVER OPERATIVES REFUSED

FALL RIVER, July 9.—The executive committee of the Cotton Manufacturers' association today voted not to grant the request of the textile council for a week's vacation for the operatives in the city, beginning the last Monday in August. At a joint conference of the textile councils of this city and New Bedford, held last week in this city, it was voted that each council request the Cotton Manufacturers associations of both cities for a week's vacation each year. It is a foregone conclusion that the New Bedford operatives also will meet with a refusal.

The mills in Fall River are tied up with contracts, especially those concerns manufacturing narrow goods. The enormous sales of 28-inch 64xds, seven yards to the pound, which were made to the American Printing company call for deliveries during the months of August and September. Other mills turning off wide goods are also fully engaged for the next several months. Some of the mills have contracts extending well into next year. The mills in New Bedford, which usually have their product sold a year ahead, would suffer a pecuniary loss if a week's vacation were to be granted.

EDITOR BELL

SAYS THAT LAWYER PATRICK IS INNOCENT

NEW YORK, July 9.—Clark Bell, editor of the Medico-Legal Journal, makes a positive editorial assertion in the current issue of his publication, just out, that Albert Patrick, now under life sentence in Sing Sing for the murder of Wm. Marsh Rice, is innocent. He bases his statement on what he says is scientific proof. In brief, the argument is that Patrick was never convicted or even tried on the charge of forging the Rice will, thus the motive of the murder is eliminated.

Mr. Bell asserts that the two subscribing witnesses to the will, both reputable members of the bar, now in practice, who were indicted with Patrick have never been tried, despite their repeated efforts to have a hearing. Nevertheless, Dr. Bell adds, the jury which tried Patrick, the judge who sentenced him and the justices of the court of appeals, which upheld the lower court, all believed at the time of the trial that he forged the will, whereas, says Mr. Bell, the fact seems beyond question that he never did [illegible].

Extensive Alterations

MUST HAVE ROOM

The contractors have started on the extensive alteratons of our big store. The show windows have already been torn down—room is needed for the busy mechanics—the balance of the stock must be gotten out of their way. Profits and largest portion of the cost will be sacrificed on thousands of dollars worth of Fine, Reliable, Men's and Boys' Clothing, Furnishing Goods, Hats and Shoes to save them from the dust and dirt of the workmen.

Our Store Is Now Open for a Great Shoveling Out Sale

We will use the shovel in every department. Everything must move. We want the room for the workmen and must get rid of the goods. That's why the reductions are so startling.

WE HAVE TURNED PRICES TOPSY-TURVY

All the broken lots of Suits and odds and ends, Suits that the Lowell One Price formerly sold up to $20 and more, garments that hundreds of shrewd buyers have purchased as a great bargain at $11.75 during our recent sale. These will be shoveled out at

The balance of our hand tailored Suits, Kuppenheimer's finest productions and other high class makes, all weights in fancy worsteds, made for this season's trade to be retailed at $22.50, $25, $28 and $30. Boys' $3, $3.50 and $4 Suits will be shoveled out at 94c each.

And yet the story is not half told. We can't tell it in this small space. Suffice it to say that commencing today at 10 o'clock we will sell the balance of this stock at such prices as will bring buyers to our store by the score. Be on hand at

WILL TAFT SIGN TARIFF BILL?

Some people think President Taft will not sign the tariff bill as turned out by the conferees; but in spite of the fact that it does not conform to his views of what a tariff law should be, the probability is that he will sign it as the republican offering to the trusts in lieu of their support at the polls.

NEW ENGLAND'S INDUSTRIAL COMPETITORS.

To maintain the supremacy of the shoe industry and the textile industry in New England in the face of growing competition from the west and the south, is one of the important problems before the people of New England today and one the favorable solution of which depends upon harmonious cooperation between employer and employe, arbitration of differences and steady advancement in technical training with due recognition of merit among the operatives.

The shoe towns of New England will have to look to their laurels in view of the competition by St. Louis and some other cities. They are placed in the same relation to the western cities as Lowell and other mill cities hold to the competition from the southern states.

St. Louis is near the raw material required in the shoe business. It costs money to ship the hides to the east and to ship the shoes back. Whether this be the consideration or not, it is a fact that St. Louis can make certain grades of shoes twelve cents a pair cheaper than can Lynn and Brockton.

The chief difficulty encountered by the shoe industries in St. Louis is that of getting skilled help. A skilled shoe maker is not the product of one year or even of five years. In this respect Brockton and Lynn have the advantage over St. Louis, but both cities have had conflicts that injured their business prospects.

Five citizens of Brockton, appointed by the Brockton city government to investigate the causes responsible for the recent exodus of a large part of the shoe industry from that city, have submitted their report, and it is really interesting as showing to what an extent a city may be injured by conflicts between employer and employes. A brief extract from this report tells the story:

> "Perhaps the chief cause of the more recent industrial depression here, and the consequent departure of confidence, among operatives, manufacturers and the city-at-large, was the failure of the Boot and Shoe Workers union to renew contractual relations with the W. L. Douglas Shoe Co. last November, when the contract with the firm expired. As a result, the company has established five factories in other towns and cities, in Massachusetts, Maine and New Hampshire. But a small part of its manufacturing is done here. Where a year ago 13,000 pairs of shoes a day were made in its Brockton factories, now there are but 1200. Where a year ago 3200 shoe workers were employed, now there are but 300 engaged in making the complete shoe, although there are 500 more cutting stock to be made into shoes in the out-of-town factories.

Brockton will have to adopt heroic measures to overcome the loss of so much of the Douglas factories.

Lynn has had under consideration for some time a scheme for permanent industrial peace, and it is needless to say that in competing with shops in other parts of the country industrial peace is most essential to success. That, we should say, is the first step towards the permanent supremacy of New England in the shoe business. The next step is to advance to high grade work that unskilled help cannot produce.

What is true of the shoe cities in these respects is true also of the mill cities in holding the supremacy of New England in the textile business. We must have industrial peace and we must advance to finer grades of goods in order to beat our southern competitors who have the advantage of proximity to the coal mines and the cotton fields.

Here in Lowell we are well equipped to hold our own against the textile competition of any other city or any other part of the country. We have industrial peace, we have skilled operatives and we have a textile school as good as any in the world, if not the best. That should enable our mills to reach the highest point of excellence in the manufacture of textiles.

The principle of arbitration is being more generally adopted, and with good results. In addition to this we are on the eve of an era of industrial education which is necessary to turn out skilled operatives that can excel in the manufacture of the finest grade of goods. With such advantages and with a permanent bounty from Nature in the shape of cheap water power, Lowell should be able to compete successfully with any mill city on earth.

If the shoe towns preserve industrial peace and provide opportunities for the training of skilled help in the finest kind of work, then they can afford to defy the world. Great results are expected from the industrial schools to be put in operation by the state board of education.

There is one way, however, by which our technical schools hit back at us, as it were. When the students of our textile school graduate, they are free to go anywhere and to become the directors of factories, spreading far and wide, it may be, in the southern states, the practical knowledge they acquired here in Lowell. We shall thus have to compete with the well trained graduates we have turned out, and there is no way of overcoming this condition. Where they go into the southern states, it will take them a long time to train thousands of operatives up to the degree of excellence attained by operatives in a city like Lowell where they have worked nearly all their lives in the mills, improving from year to year.

Another thing that must be considered in upholding the industrial supremacy of New England is, that the individual operative cannot be slighted or ignored. The progress of a mill depends upon the acquirements of the operatives individually and collectively. The mill that offers no inducement in the line of promotion is blind to its own interests, for such a policy will stifle ambition and render all efforts at self-improvement fruitless. The mill that would make steady progress onward towards higher skill must reward merit and offer inducement for self-improvement, as otherwise there will be retrogression instead of progress.

SEEN AND HEARD

The lands and buildings department is about to buy a horse and thereby hangs a joke. Adison Baker has a horse to sell and to James Dow, the inspector of lands and buildings, he said: "Come take a ride with me and see what you think of this horse." Out along the boulevard, Mr. Dow remarked that the horse was "right there with the berries," but he allowed he was a very homely "critter."

"That's a poor fault in a good horse, or in feet in any animal," said Mr. Baker. "Now James," said he, "you and I are not the best looking men that ever happened, but outside of that we're all right. Isn't that so?"

Mr. Dow allowed that Mr. Baker was right and gave his word of honor, as a soldier and gentleman that he would say no more about the homely appearance of the horse, providing that outside of that the animal was all right.

"Is Elsie at home?" lisped the little guest. "No, she's away on a visit," was the kindly reply.

"I like Elsie," said the tiny maid, her big eyes reflecting her intense sincerity. "I like you, too. I like your cat, Roguie. Why," she concluded in a burst of optimism, "I like most everything but wild beasts."

"Do you want some money for the monkey?" asked the father.

"Oh, goodie!" cried the little maid, and she gleefully dropped a few pennies in the cup.

She sat with her face wreathed in smiles till the music stopped, and as organman and monkey started away the tears fell fast.

While "Johnnie" McNamara was on his way to the business centre of the city a few mornings ago he was accosted by a fellow with a generous sized jag. Mr. McNamara lives 'way out in Bridge street and it was while passing a field that the fellow spoke to him. "Will you tell me if that man lying there in the field is dead?" he said. Following the direction in which the fellow's finger pointed, Mr. McNamara discovered a "knocked down" scarecrow. "That's only a scarecrow," said Johnnie, "it's dead because it never was alive."

The man who accosted Johnnie breathed easier. "Well, it's the form of a man's isn't it?"

"All scarecrows are as a general rule," said Johnnie.

"I'm glad of that," said the stranger. "I've been drinking and I was afraid I only imagined I saw a form in the field. You know what I mean?" Johnnie allowed that he did and pursued the even tenor of his way."

GINGLES CASE

LAWYER AND POLICE CAPTAIN CLASH

CHICAGO, July 9.—The defence in the trial of Ella Gingles for stealing lace from Agnes Barette, her former employer, closed yesterday when P. P. O'Donnell, the girl's lawyer, and Captain P. D. O'Brien of the detective bureau, accused each other of underhand motives in the case.

Captain O'Brien testified that during a conversation he had with Attorney O'Donnell Wednesday night, the lawyer said that he did not believe some parts of the girl's story.

The testimony of the police captain and of nurses at the Frances Willard hospital, where Miss Gingles was taken after the Wellington hotel incident of February 16, showed glaring discrepancies in the girl's story of the alleged attack in the hotel bathroom.

With the rebuttal testimony today, Agnes Barrette will deny the allegations that Miss Gingles has directed against her. Miss Barrette wept loudly in court yesterday when Assistant State's Attorney Short said that justice would be done Miss Barrette.

LEGISLATORS

ATLANTA, Ga., July 9.—The house adopted a resolution yesterday directing Georgia congressmen and senators to favor measures denying the use of the mails to the New Orleans and the New York cotton exchanges.

Another resolution was adopted calling on the national government to put the cotton producers on the same level with the cotton buyers by collecting and publishing information about the supply and demand for cotton similar to the reports now issued regarding the growth of the cotton crop.

SUPT. WHITCOMB

Favors Vacuum Cleaner for Schools

Dropping in upon A. E. Whitcomb, superintendent of schools, at his office in city hall today, the Sun reporter found him busily engaged in the perusal of the only school board journal published in America. Asked if there was anything of interest for the press, Mr. Whitcomb allowed that news was a little bit on the ragged edge, so to speak.

"This is the only school board journal printed in America," said the superintendent, as he held the book for the reporter to gaze upon, "and every member of the school board and the superintendent should have it. I have subscribed for it at my own expense, but perhaps some might think that the city should furnish them.

"There is never an edition of this journal that does not contain something of great interest to us and, for that matter, to the public at large. One finds versions, opinions (including supreme court opinions), suggestions, improvements, etc., from all over, and it's mighty interesting and instructive."

Mr. Whitcomb was reading an article on school vacuum cleaning and he referred to it. He called the reporter's attention to the way that the schools are swept at the present time. The janitor sweeps his school about twice a week. He uses an 18-inch brush that he pushes along, and the expert janitor is an expert sweeper, and he makes pretty fast time.

"Some of the janitors," said Mr. Whitcomb, "use coverings over their mouths and nostrils to protect them from the dust that hangs in clouds about the room. The janitor waits an hour for the dust to settle and at the end of that hour the dust that hasn't settled on the furniture is on the floor. He brushes the desks and chairs with a feather duster and lets it go at that; in fact, it is all that he can do.

"We are using and have been using for some time a dustless duster, so-called, and while it is an improvement on the old feather duster it is not just what the name implies. The duster is chemically prepared and is sanitary and antiseptic. It absorbs the dust fairly well, but I have always had in mind that sooner or later someone would invent a vacuum cleaner for the schools, and I see by this article that there is one in the market.

"I believe that vacuum cleaning in schools is one of the most important measures in sanitary betterment that has ever been worked out. It takes the dust out of the school, or, at least, it should if it works properly, instead of leaving it to flicker about and to be absorbed by the pupil as under the present brush and duster system."

Among other things in the School Board Journal, to which Mr. Whitcomb called the reporter's attention, was the following joke:

Teacher—"What is the meaning of elecution, Harold?"

Harold—"It is the way people are put to death in some states."

Seeing that Harold was a pupil, we will have to admit that there is "some class" to the joke.

"RUM WAR" RAGING

Every Dealer in Bangor and Vicinity is Threatened

BANGOR, Me., July 9.—The force of 11 Sturgis deputies now at work in Bangor and vicinity since July 1 is beginning to make itself felt in the "liquor zone." The raids have ranged from a visit of the entire delegation to a leading hotel and the bringing of H. C. Chapman into court down to raids on the smallest dives and kitchen bars in the "Devils half-acre."

On Wednesday a sensational raid was made on an express company when bars and axes were used to break down barriers, when a large quantity of liquor was seized and M. J. Buckley held under bonds. A raid on a bottling concern operated by Max and Hiram Dennis on French stret disclosed a pipe leading from three barrels of ale, under the street presumably, to some saloon, but the deputies were unable to follow the pipe. The Dennis brothers were fined $100 and costs or 60 days in jail, from which they appealed.

Of five cases in court Wednesday, the Sturgis deputies secured convictions in all. Dennis McGuire and Jeremiah Clifford of Bangor and Frank Violette and George King of Orono were fined $100 and costs or 60 days in jail, except Violette, who got the fine and the jail sentence, charged with a second offence. All appealed and furnished bonds.

The "rum war" has driven a few dealers who have been running a bar in connection with other lines out of business for a time, at least, but thus far the town is far from "dry." Many places raided stock up again inside of an hour.

One of the deputies said today, "The only way we can stop liquor being sold in Bangor, at this time, is to place a deputy in front of every place and let him follow every customer in. We are however, securing a large number of cases for the grand jury to consider and for the attention of the county attorney.

"We expect to have from one to half a dozen cases against practically every dealer in the county for the August term of court. Some are extremely hard to catch, as they employ watchers and are tipped off by the 'wireless,' as they call it, but we get some of the most crafty after a while.

"We have evidence against practically every dealer in town—enough to send all to jail. That is about all that we can do. With a long time to stock up while everything was 'wide open,' and with hundreds of barrels of liquor hidden about the city, it is difficult to produce anything like a drouth for a time, although we have reduced the stock some.

"We get a vast amount of volunteer information from anonymous parties about 'hides' and people who are doing business, mostly sent to us probably from spite. In some cases an elaborate chart or map of the 'hides' is sent us. We use some of this information in connection with what we already have, but as a general thing pay but little attention to the unsigned communications.

"We have, however, made some successful raids on information furnished by outsiders and have rarely been mistaken. I do not know how long this is to be kept up and the stay here is indefinite as far as I know."

Under the new law the county attorney may be removed if he doesn't prosecute liquor cases upon the evidence presented.

U. S. SENATE

Passed the Tariff Bill Late Last Night

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The tariff bill passed the senate after 11 last night by a vote of 45 to 34 republicans voting in the negative were Beveridge, Ind.; Bristow, Kas.; Brown, Neb.; Burkett, Neb.; Clapp, Minn.; Crawford, S. D.; Cummins, Ia.; Dolliver, Ia.; La Follette, Wis.; Nelson, Minn.

The senate sat continuously yesterday from 10 o'clock in the morning until late last night, stopping neither for luncheon nor dinner. Most of the many speeches during the day and evening were brief and in the main the day was devoted to action upon amendments.

The most interesting occurrences of the sitting were the adoption of amendments by Senator Bradley of Kentucky, and by Sen. Curtis of Kansas, the former exempting tobacco "in the hand" from the internal revenue tax of six cents a pound, and the latter placing a countervailing duty on crude petroleum shipped from countries which impose duties on oil importations from the United States. The action on tobacco was a real surprise. The senate has frequently refused to remove the tax.

A large number of minor amendments were added during the day by the finance committee, but most of the changes suggested by other senators were tabled.

The closing scenes in the senate chamber were tame indeed. Mr. La Follette's speech was earnest, but not especially animated. He had a slim audience on the floor and the galleries were not crowded. Senators remained in their seats alone because required to be there to vote.

The result of the vote on the bill had been long discounted as there was no doubt of its passage by the usual finance committee majority.

The vote in detail:

Mr. Aldrich declared that the pending bill was a fulfillment of the party's pledge. If senators wished to vote against the bill, he said, they should not attempt to speak for their party.

"I have listened with deep interest to the tearful and prophetic funeral oration," said Mr. Stone from the democratic side of the chamber. He declared it reminded him of the old hymn "Hark, from the Tomb a Doleful Sound."

Mr. Crawford protested vigorously against any attempt by Chairman Aldrich to prevent republican senators from the exercise of their judgment.

"Am I not a good loyal member of my party?" asked Mr. Crawford. He purposed to exercise his judgement and to follow his convictions in voting upon the bill.

Senator Clapp also joined in the protest against any effort by the senator from Rhode Island to control his actions.

"I am neither stung, silenced nor entombed by the words of the senator from Rhode Island," said he.

"It will take more than the senator from Rhode Island to read the state of Minnesota out of the republican party," said Mr. Nelson amid applause, which called down the gavel of the vice president with an announcement that such expressions were not permitted. He said he did not care to be lectured by the senator from Rhode Island.

The bill was then put on its passage. It was passed by a vote of 45 to 34.

Upon motion of Mr. Aldrich the vice president announced the senate conferees as follows: Senators Aldrich, Burrows, Penrose, Hale, Cullom, republicans; and Daniel, Money and Bailey, democrats.

The senate adjourned at 11.18 o'clock.

TARIFF BATTLE

Is Shifted to the House of Representatives

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The scene of the great battle over the tariff bill shifts now from the senate to the house of representatives. The members of the house rallying to the call of the whips flocked from all directions to Washington yesterday and today, and the outlook this morning was that when the house convened at noon there would be a full attendance on both sides to welcome the bill over which the senate wrestled until nearly midnight.

The final vote in the senate passing the bill by a vote of 40 to 34 was announced at 11.15 p. m. after a weary day of protracted debate which was almost devoid of animation until within a few minutes before the close, when there arose a sharp controversy over the party standing of the insurgent republican senators, several of them hotly resenting being "read out of the party" by Senator Aldrich, who disclaimed any such intention.

The house had arranged yesterday to be in session at noon today in the hope that the bill could be received from the senate by that time and there was prospect of a full attendance in anticipation of its arrival. It early came to be understood, however, that the measures probably would not be received during the day because of the laborious task imposed upon the senatorial clerical force in the enrollment of the other body. While there was disappointment over this prospect, the members of the house found satisfaction in the probability of receiving the bill tomorrow, which would enable the house to send the measure to conference before the close of the week.

The house committee on rules met after the house took a recess and decided to bring in an order providing for the reference of the bill to a committee on conference as required by the senate, the house meantime disagreeing to the senate amendments. The committee also decided that there should be a debate of one hour and a half on this order. The decision is due to the fact that there are still some absent members of the house for whose arrival the leaders on both sides prefer to wait before taking a vote.

STATIONARY ENGINEERS

SPRINGFIELD, July 9.—With between 300 and 400 members in attendance, the Massachusetts Society of Stationary Engineers opened its annual convention in this city today. W. H. Damon, state treasurer, presided and a welcoming address was made by Mayor Wm. E. Sanderson. State Deputy E. H. Kierney responded to the mayor's greeting and the convention at once proceeded to the election of officers and other business of the organization.

THE AUTO COURSE

Work of Repairing Will Soon Start

The work of preparing the race course for the automobile races will be begun next week when big gangs of men will start in on the boulevard and Varnum avenue. The oil to be used on the course has been purchased and Supt. Putnam said today that after the oiling a two-inch coating of gravel would be added. Mr. Putnam said he had not received any instructions as to banking the course but he allows that such instructions would come later.

Two New Houses

Frank Parker has been granted permits to build two one-family houses in Bennett street. The estimated cost of each house is $2200.

Bids Were Open

Bids for 400 bushels of oats, 300 for the fire department and 100 for the charity department were opened in the purchasing agent's office this forenoon. The contract went to Wilder and Weston.

The contract for 50 bushels of potatoes and 12 barrels of rolled oats for the city farm went to Caleb Smith.

BODY RECOVERED

PENSACOLA, Fla., July 9.—With the bones stripped of flesh by alligators, the body of Herman Wilcox of Chicago, who found yesterday in Chord lake, two miles from Camp Walton, a summer resort where Wilcox had been residing with his mother for the last few months. Not knowing that the lake contained hundreds of alligators, Wilcox went in for a swim. He had been missing four days.

YOUNG TORNADO

Did Great Damage Near Portalnd, Me.

PORTLAND, Me., July 9.—Much damage in the vicinity of Gray was done by a young tornado late yesterday. Roofs were taken off barns, a hayfield was cleared of eight tons of hay cut in the forenoon, an eighth of an acre of young pines was levelled and small apple trees were torn up by the roots. Telephone wires were badly mixed.

LAKEVIEW THEATRE

At Lakeview theatre this week, Jas. Kennedy, supported by the Flynn stock company in "Jack Swift," continues to draw large and well pleased audiences. The play is proving to be one of the best so far offered by this company and Mr. Kennedy, by his excellent work, is adding many new admirers to his already large following and the supporting company are seen to good advantage in the current bill. Next week the play announced for Lakeview is an Irish comedy drama "A True Irish Gentleman" in which Mr. Kennedy is seen in the role of a warm-hearted Irish lad who comes to America in search of his fortune. It is said that Mr. Kennedy is seen at his best in Irish parts and the supporting company will be cast to advantage. Matinees are given daily except Monday at Lakeview.

REV. MR. BARTLETT COMING

SOME MILL NEWS

Electricity Taking Place of Steam

PLANT INSTALLED IN TREMONT AND SUFFOLK

Statements Filed by Local Mills—Tremont and Suffolk Declares Dividend—Other Mill News of Interest

"Within the last four or five years," says Fibre and Fabric, "there has been a quiet movement among New England textile mills, which, in its natural working out, means the very general substitution of electricity for steam."

Among the mills to adopt electricity, although it has not altogether taken the place of steam, is the Tremont & Suffolk mills of this city. The turbine and electric drives recently installed are giving splendid satisfaction.

At the present time there are no less than 40 New England cotton mills which are either using or have orders for installing steam turbines for the generation of motive power to operate their plants. The aggregate steam turbine capacity of these 40 mills is nearly 100,000 horsepower, or exactly 98,150. A year ago there were but 22 mills, with a total of 44,000 steam turbine horsepower capacity. Five years ago the mechanical operation of New England cotton mills was almost entirely dependent upon steam or water power. Numbered among these mills are some of the very largest and most important in the country, such as the Amoskeag (which is using 5000 horsepower, generated by turbines with provision for an ultimate enlargement to 10,000 horsepower), the Arlington mills, the Nashua mills, Pacific mills, and Tremont & Suffolk.

In still another way are the cotton mills of New England making use of electrical apparatus for power purposes. In many cases, where power is generated by water or steam, electric motors are used for the delivery of power. At present fully 175,000 horsepower is delivered by motors in New England mills alone, and in the entire country there is some 350,000 horsepower so delivered. The increase in the use of motors has shown a yearly average gain during the last three years of 30 per cent. better than a 100 per cent. increase in the three years.

Vacations Refused

In reply to a communication from the joint textile councils of Fall River and New Bedford, Mass., asking for a week's vacation to begin the last Monday in August each year, C. M. Hathaway, secretary of the Cotton Manufacturers' association, has written to Secretary Taylor, of the Fall River Textile council, stating that it would be impossible to grant the request. The letter follows:

"July 6, 1909.

"Thomas Taylor, Esq., Secretary Fall River Textile Council.

"Dear Sir—Your letter of July 1, containing a request for a holiday of one week, to begin the last Monday in August each year, has been received by the committee. After due consideration, they unanimously decided that it would be impossible to grant the request.

"C. M. Hathaway."

The present carbonizing plant has a capacity of 60,-000 pounds of stock and this amount will be increased to 85,000 pounds. It is expected that the machinery in the new addition will be in operation about August 1.

MOUNT AIRY, N. C., July 9.—The Mount Airy cotton mill will be sold at public auction on August 2, to the highest bidder. This is good property, the machinery being new and of the latest improved style. It is centrally located and the buildings are of brick, partly three and four stories, and well lighted with electricity.

MANISTEE MILLS CO. BANKRUPT

Assets of the company were in the neighborhood of $100,000 and liabilities $200,-000. The troubles are said to be due to inability to realize promptly on outstanding accounts.

WILL MANUFACTURE MEN'S WEAR

PHILADELPHIA, July 9.—All of the jacquard machines are being removed from the looms in the plant of Thompson & Halliwell, by Walter Thompson, now owner of the factory, the looms being changed to weave men's wear goods, which will hereafter be the product of the mill.

ENLARGING CARPET MILL

WILL DOUBLE YARN MILL

PHILADELPHIA, July 9.—Wolstenhulme & Clarke, manufacturers of worsted weaving and knitting yarns on the French system, will erect a large mill on Allegheny avenue, Manayunk. The new structure will be five stories high, 500 feet long and 112 feet wide, and will be of reinforced concrete. This new structure will double the firm's present capacity. Construction work will in all probability be started early in October and it is expected the building will be ready for operation at the end of December.

THE TALBOT CLOTHING CO.

is making a novel display of artistic advertising in its Central street window this week. The exhibition consists of a series of newspaper illustrations many times enlarged (each picture being about 2½ by 3 feet) which have appeared at different times this season in connection with their advertisements in The Sun. They are well known subjects, true to life and show a most careful study. They are the work of a prominent New York artist, and are made especially for "Hart, Schaffner & Marx." The pictures portray "The Marathon Race," "The Baseball Game," "The Memorial Day Parade," "The Fourth of July Orator." In inspecting the pictures you will see many old friends and situations that are familiar to us all. There is also shown a picture of "The Home of Hart Schaffner & Marx" now being erected in Chicago, also a separate picture of "The Main Entrance," which is of unusual beauty and artistic design. The building is in many respects one of the finest and most remarkable office buildings in the world. It will be 12 stories in height and will have a floor space of over eight acres. Floors on which the clothing is stored are absolutely dust proof. This is accomplished by sealing all the wood and passing the air through water before entering the building; a refrigerating system of the same kind will be provided for the health of the employes. A refrigerator system will cool the air and sterilize and cool the drinking water. There will be pneumatic tubes for sending the mail; spiral chutes for handling the freight, and many other features of modern equipment.

The Talbot Clothing Co. makes this special display in connection with a special display of "Hart, Schaffner & Marx" fine suits which are advertised at a special price in this issue. The pictures as well as the suits are well worth a trip to the store to examine.

LAID UP 3 MONTHS WITH AN ULCER

On Ankle—It Was Very Bad and Only Got Worse Under Treatments—Cuticura Soon Healed It—Baby's Head Freed from Stubborn Scurf by Cuticura Soap.

TWO ECONOMICAL CURES BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"My case was a very bad ulcer sore on my ankle and I was laid up three months with it. I was reading an advertisement in the newspaper one day about the Cuticura Remedies so I purchased a cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and a large bottle of Cuticura Resolvent. After using one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment my ulcer was healed, by washing twice a day with the Soap and using the other remedies as directed. Before I used the Cuticura Remedies my sore was getting worse all the time under other treatments. Furthermore we have a baby boy here and we have found that Cuticura Soap has been a fine thing for him. He had scurf on his head and we tried every way to remove it but failed until we used the Cuticura Soap which removed it almost at once. George M. Hall, Brushton, N. Y., Dec. 24, 1908."

CURED FALLING HAIR

And Itching Scalp with Cuticura.

"Some months ago I suffered with a bad form of scalp disease. My hair was falling out and my head itched. I read about Cuticura and determined to try it. I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and used them. I continued using the Cuticura Ointment on my head daily and the result was truly wonderful. I still use it occasionally and I always have Cuticura Soap on hand. The cure is complete. Mrs. Amy Geissler, 2018 South Seventh St., Omaha, Neb., Sept. 23 and Oct. 8, 1908."

Cuticura Soap (25c.), Cuticura Ointment (50c.) and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.), (or in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60). Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., 135 Columbus Ave., Boston, Mass.

32-page Cuticura Book, mailed free, giving description, treatment and cure of diseases of the skin.

B. & N. CAR BARN

In Lawrence Damaged by Fire

LAWRENCE, July 9.—Fire leveled the building known as the West End clubhouse, on the north bank of the Merrimack river, near the junction of Water street and McFarlin court, yesterday afternoon, entailing a loss of about $1000. The building was owned by John W. Livingstone, dealer in empty barrels. It was originally built for boxing bouts, but was disposed of to Livingstone after the athletic meets were given up.

The structure burned rapidly and the flames communicated with the car barn of the Boston & Northern Street Railway company close by. The side of this latter building was considerably charred. It was reported that boys had a bonfire in the vicinity of the building and a theory is that a spark reached the structure. While the department was at work another alarm came in for a blaze in the dumping ground of the Pacific mills on the opposite side of the river.

FIREMEN'S MUSTER

LOWELL TUBS ENTERED FOR LAWRENCE CONTEST

Already 87 handtubs have been enlisted for the annual muster of the New England Veteran Firemen's league, which is to be held at Lawrence this year. Being so near home, the muster will be attended by the Lowell red shirts, and doubtless by hundreds of people who like the pumping game.

At a meeting of the Lawrence association held to discuss preliminary arrangements, a committee consisting of George A. Merrill, Darius H. Finn, John Mulcahy, M. J. Griffin and Michael Conlon, all well known to Lowell Vets, was appointed to have charge of the muster. Chief Hamilton said that the Chinese consul general would probably attend the meet.

Tubs have been entered from Manchester, N. H., Acushnet, Winchester, Amesbury, Arlington and South Braintree, Mass., Bristol, R. I., Boston and Brockton, Mass., Brunswick, Me., Gardner, Carver, Charlestown, Somerville, Chicopee, Mass., Central Falls, R. I., Fall River, Mass., Providence, R. CANOBIE LAKE

The present show at Canobie lake theatre is drawing large crowds every afternoon and evening. Since Monday the theatre has been comfortably filled with lovers of good music and they have not been disappointed with "Bradshaw's Troubles," which is being presented this week. There is some class to this comedy and from Haverhill, Lawrence, Lowell, Nashua and the surrounding towns the success of the first week is the one topic of conversation. The installation of a roof over the theatre insures comfort in case of rainy weather and a show can be appreciated just as well at Canobie lake now as in any playhouse in the country. Mr. Lees, who is well known because of his connection with the Colonial theatre in Lawrence, is in charge and he is assisted by John F. Adams of Lowell, treasurer of the Colonial, both of whom are very familiar with the business. The theatrical season gives promise of being the most successful in the history of Canobie lake. Make it a point to go to the theatre at least once a week, and you will never regret it.

TRIED TO ENTER CAMP

The camp on the Concord river in North Billerica occupied by Mrs. Joseph Farley, wife of the well known patrolman of this city, was visited early yesterday morning by a couple of men, but they were frightened away before they succeeded in looting the place.

The camp is occupied by Mrs. Farley, her three children and an elderly woman, Mrs. Patridge.

About 1 o'clock yesterday morning, Mrs. Farley was awakened by somebody trying to gain an entrance through one of the windows. Getting up to investigate, she saw a man at the window, and another a short distance away in the direction of the river. Both fled when they saw they were observed.

The occupants of the camp were greatly alarmed, and Mrs. Farley went for aid to the nearest house, that of Charles Kemp. The town constables and later the Lowell police were notified and a search was made of the woods, but no trace of the men was found.

MACHINE GUNS

Have Been Dispatched to the Collieons

GLACE BAY, N. S., July 9.—Although neither the Dominion Coal Co. nor its striking miners nor the members of the United Mine Workers of America and sympathizers displayed any signs of relenting in their attitude when the fourth day of the great strike opened today developments were expected which would do much to decide which side held the balance of power. The presence of armed troops and machine guns at the collieries tended to curb the riotous element of the striking miners and no repetitions of the previous disturbance were anticipated. It was expected that the question of whether the coal company has sufficient support among the ranks of the provincial Workingmen association to continue to operate its mines would be definitely decided today as all the miners who decided to resume work were given military protection.

BIGAMY CHARGE

Man Said to Have 24 Wives

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9.—John Madson, who is said to be wanted for bigamy in many cities, is in the hands of the police here. The authorities say they have established his marriage to ten women and his engagement and possible marriage to fourteen others. Each is said by the police to have lost money through the acquaintance with Madson. Among those who Madson is alleged to have married are the names of Mrs. Mary Wigginsby of Springfield, Mass., who is alleged to have lost $500 and he is said to have been engaged or married to women in Gettysburg, O., St. Johns, Mich. and Hamilton, Ont. and Germany. Almost without exception Madson's victims have been widows or divorced women of middle age.

ILL FATED MARRIAGE

SPRINGFIELD, July 9.—Mrs. Mary Drown of this city, believed to have been one of the victims of the alleged bigamist, John Madson, under arrest in San Francisco, died at Oxford in the spring of 1905, never having recovered from the shock of her ill-fated marriage. She was about 48 years of age. The man whom she married represented himself as Christian Johnson, a wealthy ranchman of California and it was generally understood by Mrs. Drown's friends that her marriage to the western man was the result of a matrimonial advertisement. Mrs. Drown was married to Johnson who is believed to be Madson, in December, 1904, but separated from him three days later after he is alleged to have taken all her money from her. Previous to her marriage she conducted a dressmaking business. This she sold together with other property she had and it is thought that she turned all her money over to her husband.

THE CHARGES

AGAINST GEN'L HARTING HAVE BEEN SUSTAINED

PARIS, July 9.—Although the result of the government investigation into the charges made by the Russian revolutionist, Bourtzeff, against Gen. Harting, chief of the Russian political police abroad with headquarters at Paris, has not been officially announced, it is understood that the charges have practically been established. Bourtzeff accuses Gen. Harting of being no other than Michael Landesen, alias Petrosky, who was sentenced in the fall of 1890 by the correctional court of the Seine to five years' imprisonment as the organizer of the dynamite plot against Emperor Alexander II. Neither the Russian government nor the Russian embassy in Paris has come to the defense of Gen. Harting, who during his police career has been stationed at various countries under different names. General surprise is expressed here that the Russian government should ask that the Legion of Honor be bestowed on him.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

WORCESTER, July 9.—The fourth day's sessions of the five days' conference on child welfare which is being held at Clark university was chiefly occupied today by discussions on Sunday school work and ethical culture in children. Dr. Edward F. St. John, Hartford school of religious pedagogy, spoke on "A Criticism of Present Sunday School Fads. Curriculum and Grades with Construction of Text Books," Rev. Lester Bradner, rector of St. John's church, Providence; Prof. Charles Foster Kent, Yale university and Dr. David Smuzzey of the society for ethical culture, New York, were the other speakers of the forenoon session.

The interesting addresses on psychology and psycopathy were given at the afternoon session by Dr. Arthur Holmes of the university of Pennsylvania and Miss Julia Lathrop, president of the commision of the juvenile psychopathic institute, Chicago, while Miss Jessie Holder of the social service department, Massachusetts General hospital, spoke on "What is Being Done for Girls Who Go Wrong?"

THE TAFT CHILDREN

BEVERLY, July 9.—Somewhat weary from the festivities of the Lake Champlain celebration, but delighted upon reaching their summer home, Miss Helen Taft and her brother, Robert Taft, children of President Taft, arrived from Burlington at 3 a. m. today and were warmly greeted by their mother and brother Charles.

The big presidential automobile met them at the station and whirled them down to the "summer White House."

The weather along the North Shore since the Taft family took up its residence there has been exceptional and the clouds, the blue sky and the clear atmosphere continued today to the delight of the young people of the family, while Mrs. Taft is showing marked improvement.

THE SAXONIA

BOSTON, July 9.—When the steamer Saxonia reached the upper harbor today from Liverpool she found the big dock which a year ago yesterday went up in smoke and flame completely rebuilt with the most modern improvements for handling passengers and freight awaiting to receive her. Since the fire which swept the harbor front at East Boston a year ago the Boston & Albany railroad, the New England branch of the New York Central, and the Cunard company have built several large docks and have equipped them with the late pattern of freight handlers and other improvements. The Saxonia was the first steamer of the line to use the company's new docks.

A NOVEL SCHEME

Adopted to Avoid the Prohibition Laws

WASHINGTON, July 9.—A novel scheme to evade the prohibition laws has been devised by the incorporation of express companies which operate between states.

In the last two or three months several such companies have been incorporated in various parts of the country. In every instance the companies do a business close to state lines. None of them has filed with the interstate commerce commission its annual report, and it is understood an effort shortly will be made by the officials of prohibition states to prevent the operation of such companies.

The commission received an inquiry from the Mississippi state authorities a few days ago respecting the operations of an express company at Natchez, Mississippi is a prohibition state, yet it turns out that an express company was organized and incorporated at Natchez, the bulk of the business of which appears to be the transportation of beer and liquors from another state into Mississippi. The beverages are consigned to individuals in Mississippi and are delivered by wagons of the express company.

The curious part of the transaction is that the express company was incorporated by dealers in beers and liquors with the evident intent, according to the Mississippi authorities, of evading the stringent state liquor laws.

A similar case has arisen in Massachusetts. An express company was organized in Fall River and the company filed with the commission tariffs to cover its business. The first tariff, filed on May 22 last, governed principally the transportation of beers and liquors. Since that time additional tariffs have been filed covering the transportation of various commodities and packages and the carriage of money.

It is asserted that the incorporators of the express company are liquor dealers in Fall River who have established an office in Rhode Island, just across the Massachusetts line.

When an order for beer or liquor is received it is filled at the office of the express company in Rhode Island by wagon express. Thus the local option law of Massachusetts is not violated.

Similar devices have been adopted by other express companies which have been organized in other sections of the country.

BARGE WAS LOST

BOSTON, July 9.—The sinking at the Barnegat yesterday morning of one of the barges of the tug Valley Forge which left Philadelphia on the 6th inst. with the Bear Ridge, Barry and Perkasie for this city was reported by the steamer Grecian today upon her arrival from Philadelphia. All hands on the sunken barge were saved by the Valley Forge.

When the Grecian reached the scene the Valley Forge was steaming about amid considerable wreckage, one barge was heading up the Jersey coast under sail while the second barge was a short distance away with the end of her tow line over the bow as if attached to the sunken barge.

Details of the accident could not be obtained and after the Valley Forge had reported that all hands were saved and that no assistance was needed the Grecian steamed for Boston.

A BOULDER

ISLE LAMOTE, Vt., July 9.—Patriotic women of Vermont today dedicated a boulder in memory of Col. Smith Warner and Capt. Remember Baker, heroes who were associated with Ethan Allen in the battles of revolutionary days along the shores of Lake Champlain as a part of the exercises marking the close of the week's celebration of the 300th anniversary of the discovery by Champlain of the lake bearing his name. The dedicatory address was delivered by the Rev. John M. Thom, president of Middlebury college. Govs. Hughes and Prouty of the New York and Vermont Champlain tercentenary commissions and their guests arrived from Burlington and Plattsburg on the steamer Ticonderoga early in the day. Solemn high mas was celebrated by the Right Rev. Thomas A. Burke, bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Albany, N. Y., officiating, following which literary exercises were held with Gov. Prouty of Vermont presiding. After prayer by Rev. John M. Thomas, the visitors were welcomed to Vermont by Gov. Prouty and Senator Henry W. Hall of Buffalo, secretary of the New York commission. The principal address of the day was delivered by Justice Wendell B. Stafford of the supreme court of the District of Columbia. Gov. Hughes spoke briefly and an original poem was read by Prof. John Erskine of Amherst.

TROUBLE IS LOCALIZED

BOGOTA, July 9.—The friends of peace have requested the president-designate, Gen. George Holguin, to allow them to send commissioners to Barranquilla a town on the Atlantic seaboard, where a revolution broke out last Sunday to advise the revolutionists to disarm immediately. The request was granted and the commissioners will leave Bogota shortly. The government's advices are to the effect that the revolution was entirely localized to Barranquilla and that there was no fighting.

Gen. Holguin has offered to provide all travelling facilities to congressmen so that they can reach Bogota in time to attend to congress on July 20.

WESTON'S WALK.

CISCO, Cal., July 9.—Edward Payson Weston arrived here shortly after midnight after a walk of 60 miles. After resting until 7 a. m., he left through the snow sheds toward the Sacramento valley. Weston was feeling in the best of spirits and said he expected to reach Sacramento Saturday afternoon and San Francisco the following Tuesday.

Be good to yourself, trade at Coburn's.

Coburn's Liquid

Disinfectant

A tablespoonful in the bath insures protection against infectious maladies, and produces and maintains a healthy state of the skin. Also, by its use, the unpleasantness of perspiring feet is quickly removed. It softens hard water. Free circular on the uses of Coburn's Liquid Disinfectant for the asking.

North Chelmsford Mills Run Day and Night

George C. Moore is making fine progress with the rebuilding of his mill and the addition thereto and when the work is completed he will have a bigger plant than ever. The old mill was 400 feet in length and this is being rebuilt, while a 200 foot addition is being built adjoining it. A portion of the building is four stories high, while the greater part is two stories in height. The old card room of the Moore mill has been leased by the Middlesex Towel company of Lowell, which started to move in on July 1. The Moore card room will be in the new building. Mr. Moore will use the remainder of the building for wool scouring and will have a larger plant than ever before. His old Baldwin mill is running day and night.

Contractor Jalbert of Lowell has the contract for the brick work on Moore's mill, while Miner & O'Neil of North Chelmsford are doing the woodwork.

DYNAMITE USED

To Blow Up Post Office Material

DETROIT, Mich., July 9.—As an outcome, the police think, of labor troubles a suit case of dynamite was placed under a pile of steel girders today in the yard of the Whitehead & Kales plant on Beecher avenue and exploded. The terrific explosion wrecked windows for a mile around and caused considerable damage to nearby factories.

The girders were for use in an extension to the postoffice, which is being constructed by Whitehead & Kales. The firm has conducted an open shop and has had more or less labor troubles as a result.

JOHN GOLDEN

Spoke Before the American Institute of Instruction

CASTINE, Me., July 8.—The Educational Need From the Viewpoint of Organized Labor," was discussed by John Golden, president of the United Textile Workers of America here yesterday. Mr. Golden spoke in part as follows:

"The educational need of the present day, speaking from the standpoint of the wage earner, is undoubtedly one that calls for more opportunities and better facilities for industrial education. I served on a commission a few years ago, that was appointed by William L. Douglas, while Governor of Massachusetts. This commission was composed of representatives from the state board of education, employers' associations, trade unions, agricultural associations, etc., its duties being to make a thorough investigation as to the needs of industrial education in Massachusetts. Whatever doubts I might have had in my mind as to the need of such education were dispelled very quickly after we started to make our investigation. For instance, we found that 55,000 persons in Massachusetts alone were seeking to acquire the knowledge of this character through the aid of the various correspondence schools of the country. Another thing which we discovered was in regard to the shoe-making industry. I have no doubt you are all aware of the fact that the old system of making shoes by hand has about entirely disappeared; the old-fashioned shoemaker who sat at his bench and made the entire shoe is no more, the whole system has been changed, and the shoe of today before it is finally ready for the market goes through about 86 different processes, or in other words the man in the shoe making industry today is only what may be termed the 80th part of a shoemaker of the olden times. What is the result? A man becomes proficient on a certain shoe machine today, and the chances are he remains on that same kind of a machine all the days of his life, he has little or no opportunity to any other machine; only by adopting a method which is called "stealing the trade," or in other words he moves around from one shop to another to acquire his knowledge of some other machine, until he becomes competent enough to hold his job. It was clearly brought out in our investigation, that 1500 men, and as many women were engaged every year in this task, "stealing the trade" in the shoe industry.

Let me give you a little history concerning the inauguration of the textile schools in Massachusetts, situated in Lowell, New Bedford and Fall River. In Fall River up to about twenty years ago the cotton mills there were chiefly engaged in the manufacture of print cloths; it did not require a great deal of skill to manufacture this kind of goods, but things began to change, there was a demand for other kinds of cotton goods of a finer grade; the south began to be a factor in the print cloth market, Fall River no longer held sway in this direction, and as a consequence, started out in other lines. This required more skill especially on the part of some of the employes; among these latter were the "loom-fixers." These men had to fix the looms that wove the cloth; these machines became more complicated every year as a consequence of having extra attachments added to the looms for weaving the finer fabrics; the loomfixer found himself incapable of doing the work as he ought to, the matter was discussed in his union meeting (these men were nearly all members of the union), as a result an old loom was secured, placed in the basement of the hall where the union held its meetings, and one or two of the members who had come over from England where they had had the benefit of an industrial training in the textile schools there, used to give lessons to the rest of the members in the art of fixing looms, the union paying them a small stipend for their trouble. It was just this kind of situations that first started the agitations for textile schools, where both men and boys could secure instruction along the industrial lines, and when the movement did begin to materialize towards the building and equipment of textile schools, there was no more ardent advocate, nor no more willing worker in the cause than the officers and members of the various textile unions, and when the schools were finally started on their career, many of these same union officials were given a place on the board of management, and are still there, no one to my knowledge ever regretting that he was given an opportunity to co-operate in this grand and noble work.

There are some people who labor under the impression that organized labor is opposed to the movement for industrial education; such, however, is not the case by any means. The American Federation of Labor at its convention held in Norfolk, Va., in 1907, passed a resolution endorsing the movement as outlined by a representative of the National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education, in the person of Prof. Richards of Columbia university, who addressed the convention. At a later convention, held in Denver, Colo., in 1908, it went still further by instructing President Gompers to appoint a committee of fifteen to make a thorough investigation of the whole subject and report at the next convention. President James O'Connell of the International Machinists union, President McNulty of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, along with myself, are on the board of managers of the National society above referred to, and I have the honor also of representing organized labor on the executive committee. Organized labor, however, is strongly opposed to some forms of industrial education; namely, that represented by the "trade school," that guarantees to turn out a young man in a few months' time as a full fledged tradesman; the result of such schools have been to flood the labor market with "half baked" journeymen, to put a premium on securing the job, instead of a premium on the skill necessary to do the job; and, what is worse still, that kind of school has on some occasions supplied strikebreakers when union men have been endeavoring to secure that which they felt they were justly entitled to. And let me ask you why should not the union craftsman jealously guard the only asset he has in the world against those who would not hesitate a moment to depreciate its value. It is the only means he has to maintain his home, and provide for those dependent upon him. If he is somewhat slow in taking up with these new movements, it is because of what he has endured in the past, and because of the fact that he wants to make sure that those whom he loves are not going to suffer.

Organized labor realizes just as keenly as anybody else, that this movement in the interest of industrial education is not a fad, but a stern reality, and an absolute necessity. If this country is to preserve and maintain its industrial supremacy, men and women in all walks of life, irrespective of their station, must join hands together in one united effort. Industrial education is not and must not be inaugurated in the interest of any special class, but for the benefit of all, rich and poor alike must have equal opportunities to secure such education. The same keen desire to see their child "make good" exists in the breast of the poor parents as well as the rich; the door of opportunity must never be closed to any one who is worthy to enter. I believe the question as to the need of such education has passed beyond the debating stage; what is now needed more than anything else is for all classes to get together, and co-operate in this great movement, which is not a question of capital and labor no more than it is a subject to exploit our fads and fancies. I believe we should get right hold of the boy at 14, when his mind is becoming impressionable, when he is just beginning to feel his wants to do something tangible; teach him the "why" and the "wherefore" of certain things and the very best way to do them."

PLAYED IN CYCLONE

Base Ball Under Difficulties at Spalding Park

Game Was Stopped Thrice on Account of Dust—Lowell Defeated Haverhill in a Sharply Played Game

Somebody left the gate open at Spalding park yesterday and as a result there was a draught that threatened to put the game out of commission.

Only heavy weight ball tossers had any license to compete with the young cyclone that enveloped the grounds during the first four innings. Joe Boyle was on the bench and it was a good thing, for the wind would have landed him down in Tewksbury Centre. Young McDevitt had to carry weights in right field to keep on the ground while the only man who really could cut the wind was big Joe Harris.

The storm started just as Umpire Fahey was starting the game. The wind refused to stop and so Fahey had to, on several occasions. The blasts came diagonally across the field from the left field corner to the first base bleachers and the old grand stand and in a very few minutes swept everybody off both. The fans on the third base bleachers didn't feel the wind at all and had great fun watching the others digging out the dust.

The opening part of the game certainly was played unde difficulties, but after the fourth the wind discontinued its rowdy tactics and the remainder of the game proceeded quite smoothly.

Al. Whitredge was on the slab in his best form and he pitched a first class game. Huston caught him and was right there with the goods. Young McDevitt in right field contributed a running catch of a line drive from the bat of hard-hitting Joe Briggs that was one of the beautiful features of the game.

The visitors presented Friel on the slab with a new man named Kelly behind the bat. The home team didn't hit Friel hard but they hit in timely manner.

The visitors scored their only run in the first when Courtney opened with a wicked grounder at Venable that was as sure a single as was ever batted. Buck knocked down the ball but threw bad to first, the sphere going clear to the bleachers while Courtney tore around to third. Connaughton hit down the line to Danzig and was out. Merrill flied to Howard. The latter sent the ball home like a shot but the wind got to it and drove it 20 feet wide so that Courtney scored with ease. "Boyle would get that," cried a fan, but no catcher living ever could have got it.

In the fourth with two out, Boardman hit to right field for two bases. Then Demara made a single to left. Bannon in returning the ball sent it to Venable holding Boardman at third. Demara thinking that Bannon would throw home started for second when Venable quickly shot the ball to Fitz getting there ahead of Demara. Boardman tore for home at the throw of the ball and Fitz lined the sphere back to Huston, catching Boardman at the plate in a very pretty and sharp play. In the ninth with Demara on first and none out Joe Briggs hit a line drive between centre and right that looked good for three bases. McDevitt started off at the crack of the bat and caught the sphere on the dead run, just as it was sailing by him. It was a peach of a catch.

Howard started the scoring for the homers in the second opening with a single, a hot grounder that struck Demara in the feet and bounded away from him. He stolo a base and a sacrifice sent him along another peg. McDevitt got his lamps on the ball and clouted it to the left field fence for a two sacker scoring Howard.

In the fourth Danzig opened with a two bagger and then taking a long lead sneaked to third. The ball was sent to Boardman but he muffed it and Dan scored. In the fifth Lowell got two more after two men were out. Venable got a single and went to second on Merrill's fumble. Buck then worked the prettiest kind of a single, making the base after the ball had been returned to Friel. Fitz was right there with a single and Buck scored. Uniac hit a fly to Briggs who dropped it and Fitz beat it to third. Uniac and Fitz then worked a double steal and Fitz landed home for Lowell's fourth run.

At one time during the game it was impossible to see the pitcher from the grand stand so dense was the dust.

DIAMOND NOTES.

The game at Spalding park tomorrow will begin at 3 instead of 3.15. Haverhill will be the attraction and Joe Harris will pitch for Lowell.

Lowell hasn't a pitcher among the 10 leading twirlers of the league, a fact which tells much of the story. A couple of good pitchers would put Lowell on the map. Billie Merritt, the old leaguer, is scouting for a pitcher for Lowell.—Brockton Times.

Sporting writers all over the circuit are still talking about Monday's attendance at Spalding park.

The wind got under Mutt's homemade chest protector and were it not for the fact that Mutt was weighted down with baseballs he'd have sailed over the grand stand.

Old Friend Paddy Duff, on first base for Haverhill was a familiar figure. Paddy fanned out nice just to show that he hadn't forgotten how to do that little stunt.

McDevitt made a running catch in right yesterday that would entitle him to a nomination for the council in ward 13, had he made it in his own town.

Three times Mutt was obliged to suspend hostilities on account of the wind. If the game had been at Washington park the crowd would have gone home looking like a colored picnic.

The wind was the cause of three incipient blazes, two under the bleachers and one under the grand stand. All were promptly extinguished

On Tuesday Lowell will play a double-header with Fall River at Spalding park, the first game called at 2 o'clock.

There will be a record breaking crowd at the game tomorrow. "Joe" Harris of the Boston Americans, a former New England league player and a great Lowell favorite will be in the box for Lowell.

At Wednesday's game Henry Garity of the Old Washington Tavern and Hormidas Gervais bought tickets of admission for a small army of small boys. As they were doing the philanthropic stunt along comes Artist Beckwith of the Lynn daily Item and as a result their pictures were in yesterday's Item. Mr. Garity spent many years in Lynn and his old friends in that city will notice by the picture that he hasn't changed any.

Billy Mulcahey has completely covered the town with baseball flags and will now proceed to cover the fence with ads.

Supt. Warren of the Middlesex Training school has written his thanks to Manager Gray for his invitation to the boys to attend the game. Supt. Warren will arrange a date early in August.

Says the Manchester Mirror:

"What a chance for a big moneymaker that Lowell club has got!" exclaimed John Smith, the fashioner of champion baseball teams. "Why, it has the greatest chance in the world. Just a few fast ball players will send the team up the New England ladder, and then Lowell fans will be crazy.

"They tell me they had 4500 people at the Fourth of July morning game in Lowell. That is drawing some. Lowell has everything in its favor for a winning club. Manager Gray, the new head of the club, is popular in Lowell and all through the circuit. He is the old Lowell basketball manager.

"Just to show what a few fast men will do, look at the work of Danzig since he came to Lowell. He is hitting for over .400 and has given the team a wonderful brace. If the Lowell management wants to make all kinds of money, all it has got to do is to step out and buy three or four more Danzigs and it will have all of the other New England league clubs guessing. Nothing in baseball so enthuses the local fans as to see the home team climb, and if it happens to be a tailender, like Lowell, the enthusiasm knows no bounds. Lowell has the opportunity of a life time. The players are to be had if the money is forthcoming, and the time to make the investment is right now."

AMATEUR BASEBALL.

The following letter was received today:

Sporting Editor, Dear Sir—

There has been considerable talk around town in baseball circles as to why the Wanderer-Y. M. C. A. teams have not played off their postponed game of May 22 in the L. & S. league series, and I wish to offer an explanation through your valuable paper.

On May 22 the Wanderers and the Y. M. C. A. were scheduled to clash, it being the Wanderers' home game. The game was postponed owing to inclement weather, with the understanding that it was to be played off on the first open date. On May 31 the Y. M. C. A. secured Washington park, but instead of playing the Wanderers took on the Lowell Americans. On June 12, the next open date in the league series, left open purposely for playing off postponed games, the Y. M. C. A.'s again took on another team. The next open date, which the league has, is July 24, and already almost three weeks in advance the Y. M. C. A. manager has refused to play off the postponed game, which has been hanging over for nearly two months. The boys from the Flats trounced the Y. M. C. A. team the first time they met, winning hands down, 8 to 4, and are confident of repeating the dose. It would seem to be up to the manager of the Y. M. C. A. team to quit sidestepping and forefhushing and play ball.

Sincerely yours,
George Moss, Mgr. Wanderers.

The Wanderers will cross bats with the Indian team on the South common playgrounds Saturday at 3 o'clock and a hot contest is expected as the Indians are playing good ball.

The Lowell Electric Light plant on Perry street is to be represented on the ball field this season; as a team has been organized under the supervision of Mr. Walter Small. Judging from some of the players included in the team it is safe to say that this aggregation will make some of the strong amateur teams step at a fast clip.

Saturday afternoon on the Novitiate grounds at Tewksbury, the O. M. I. Cadets and the Dragons will meet for the second time this season, in a game in the Lowell & Suburban league. The last time these teams met resulted in a victory for the Cadets, but the Dragons have been greatly strengthened since then, and have won their last three games, which has brought them up considerably in the league standing. On the other hand the Cadets have been playing fast ball all season, the Mt. Groves being the only team that has defeated them thus far, and they feel confident of another victory over the Dragons.

"Sully."

CASE DISMISSED

DOE LOSES HIS CASE AGAINST BURKETT

BOSTON, July 9.—The suit of Alfred C. Doe, formerly owner of the New Bedford baseball team of the New England league, against the Worcester New England Baseball club and Jesse Burkett, its owner and manager, for a share of $1750 which the Worcester club received for the sale of two players, was dismissed by Judge Dana in the equity merit session of the superior civil court late yesterday.

The players for whom Worcester received the $1750, were Albert Bushey and Chester Chadbourne, who were sold to the Boston Nationals and Boston Americans, respectively. Doe claimed the players belonged to New Bedford and were transferred to Worcester with the understanding that Worcester would pay their salaries, but would have no power to sell or farm them out without permission from Mr. Doe.

But the players were sold and Mr. Doe claimed a share in the proceeds. Manager Burkett of the Worcester club, in his defense, claimed that Mr. Doe had sold his share in the New Bedford club before the sale of Bushey and Chadbourne was affected and that therefore he had no right to share in the proceeds.

LAWRENCE MEN

Appeared for Col. Ames' Interurban Railway

The railroad commissioners yesterday resumed the hearing on the petition of the Boston, Lowell & Lawrence Electric Railroad company which seeks a certificate that public necessity and convenience require the construction of the proposed high speed interurban between Boston and the cities of Lowell and Lawrence. There were sessions morning and afternoon.

Samuel W. Mondum of Woburn, the first witness called at the morning session, said he had no doubt whatever that the proposed road will prove of great benefit to his city. The proposed rates of fare were explained to him, and he said that while it will cost more to reach the North station by means of the new road, he felt that the people of Woburn will be satisfied with the rates proposed. The rates proposed are 13 cents for a single ride, $1.15 for a 10-ride book and $4.00 for a 50-ride book.

Leonard E. Bennink, president of the Lawrence Merchants association, said the road will mean a great public gain for his city and its people, as it will result in greatly building up the thinly settled districts around the city proper and give to the people who are now hived up in the hot streets of the city an opportunity to get out into the country districts, establish a home at a moderate cost and secure for themselves some of the fresh air that belongs to them. The city is already densely populated, having 80,000 people in an area much smaller than the adjoining town of Methuen, and with the great addition to this population which must come in with the building of new mills already planned there will have to be some facility afforded for getting out into the country.

Dr. M. F. Sullivan of Lawrence, president of the Merrimack Valley boards of trade, appeared in favor of the new road. He thinks there are very few of the people of Lawrence who do not favor it. He also made the plea of the congested condition of the city, which is bound to increase under present pending improvements. He endorsed practically all that Mr. Bennink said as to the advantages, for Lawrence people, of the new route.

In the afternoon, Mr. Frederick Ayer, formerly of Lowell, and now having property interests in both Lawrence and Lowell, said he believed the proposed electric line, with its 40 minute service from Lawrence and 35 minute service from Lowell, would be of great benefit to both cities. While it would naturally draw, at first, from both the competing systems, he believed that eventually, if run according to its program, it would improve rather than injure those interests.

Dr. Sullivan was then recalled and questioned by Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Worran of the Boston & Maine and Boston & Northern roads. He admitted that he is a shareholder in the new road, and took his interest about a year ago.

Mr. Coolidge asked Dr. Sullivan to state what, in his opinion, the Boston & Maine road ought to do to improve its service in Lawrence, and mentioned several things, most of which Mr. Coolidge said, appeared feasible. Later, in answering Mr. Fahey, Dr. Sullivan said that assuming that the Boston & Maine took cognizance of those things, they could not give a service to Boston comparable to that of the electric road. Even if the Boston & Maine gave a half-hour train service unless electrified, their service would not compare with the new road.

YOUNG DESPERADOES

Robbed Hardware Store in Ayer, Arrested Here

Three would-be desperadoes, who belong in Clinton, Mass., broke into a hardware store in Ayer last night and came to Lowell this morning with their booty, but they had not been in this city long before they were arrested by Inspector Maher and Patrolmen Cawley and Goggin and sent to the police station. They at first denied their guilt, but when put through a rigid cross examination admitted everything.

This mean Chief Beatty, of the Ayer police department, and William C. Sherwin, of the firm of L. Sherwin & Co., whose place was broken into by the boys, came to this city and congratulated the local police on their prompt work in capturing the boys. Messrs. Beatty and Sherwin with the three boys left on the 1.33 train for Ayer.

The boys gave the names of Herbert Wright, 14 years, 3 Cross street, Clinton; David Dickey, 17, 94 Church street, Clinton, and Robert Gaw, 17, 40 Oak street, Clinton.

Were Acting Suspiciously

While Inspector Maher and the two patrolmen were standing in front of the Middlesex street station this morning they noticed the three approaching. The latter were neatly dressed, but the pockets of their clothing were bulged out as though they had a quantity of stuff about them, and their suspicious actions attracted the attention of the officers, who sent them to the police station.

When questioned as to who they were and where they belonged they gave ready answers, but when asked what they had in their pockets, they said "nothing."

The Booty

They were subjected to a careful search which resulted in the finding of a number of pocket knives, cheap watches, watch fobs, flash lights, tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, automobile goggles. Each of the boys had about $2 in small change in his pocket and Dickey and Gaw had 38-calibre revolvers, but no ammunition.

They said that they had purchased the different articles, the two revolvers having been purchased in Lowell this morning, but the story did not go with the police.

Wright Tells the Story

The two older boys were taken into an ante room while Acting Supt. Weden examined Wright in a rigid manner with the result that Wright broke down and told the whole story.

He said that he and his chums left Clinton on a freight train yesterday afternoon and upon arriving at Ayer decided to break into some store.

They stayed about the town for several hours and at midnight entered a hardware store and stole the articles found in their possession with the exception of the revolver, and came to this city this morning.

Dickey and Gaw were later questioned and when they learned that Wright had told the story they admitted their guilt.

Ayer Police Notified

The Ayer police were asked if a break had been made in that town and a response in the affirmative was received. The Ayer people were informed that the culprits had been apprehended and would be held until they sent for them.

Insured Without License

The case of Edward J. Doyle, charged with unlawfully acting as an insurance agent and broker without a license, was called before Judge Pickman, in the police court this morning. Inspector Michael Barrett, of the state police, appeared for the government and the defendant was represented by James E. O'Donnell.

Mr. O'Donnell entered a plea of guilty for his client and said that in conference with Inspector Barrett, the latter had agreed on the minimum fine, $100, being imposed.

Questioned by Judge Pickman relative to the circumstances connected with the case, Inspector Barrett stated that the defendant had been representing himself to the general agents of an accident insurance company that he was a broker and on the strength of that the general agents had told him to go ahead and get business. Also that he had misrepresented himself to the people from whom he solicits insurance. Instead of giving them the company's receipt for money paid he gave the insured personal receipts.

Since proceedings were instituted against the defendant he has paid back the money on many of the receipts which he issued and destroyed the said receipts.

Lawyer O'Donnell asked for a stay of sentence till tomorrow and this was granted.

Non Support Case

Joseph Boutiette was charged with non-support in two counts. One for non-support of his wife, Fannie S., and the other with failing to provide for his minor daughter.

Mrs. Boutiette testified that she was married to the defendant in 1888 and since that time he has never shown her any affection. The oldest child works in the mill under her husband and the girl turns the money earned over to the father.

During the course of the testimony evidence was brought out to the effect that the defendant and his wife are now living apart.

Conditions at the house reached such a crisis that she left the house, taking her youngest daughter with her. She had $19 of her own and hired a tenement. Later it was necessary for her to take $23, which belonged to her daughter, out of the bank, in order to pay the rent for the house.

On cross-examination Mrs. Boutiette admitted that her husband paid the rent, the grocer, butcher, etc., and clothed the family. She took in sewing occasionally and in that way was able to make a little money for herself.

Boutiette testifying in his own behalf said that he always cared for his family and that his wife left the house of her own accord. He said he never refused to allow her to come back.

Root Beer His Beverage

William Maher denied that he was drunk last night. He admitted that he had had a couple of beers during the day but when told that according to the terms of his parole from the state farm he was to abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors, he said he had drunk root beer and other temperance beverages. Patrolman John Sullivan testified that Maher's sister called him to the house shortly before ten o'clock last night where he found the defendant in a helpless condition. Maher will be returned to the state farm.

Case Continued

Catherine Smith, drunk, was fined $6 and a first offender for drunkenness was fined $6.

Nellie Howard, who pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness yesterday, was this morning sentenced to 20 days in jail by Judge Fisher.

BAND CONCERTS

Ten to be Given on Commons

At a meeting of the committee on band concerts, held last night, it was voted to give ten band concerts by five local bands on the North and South commons, beginning next Sunday night. The Sunday night concerts will be given on the South common and the Thursday night concerts on the North common.

Mr. Vigeant, one of the committee members, was in favor of a concert in Little Canada on the site of the proposed park, off Perkins street. He also favored the giving of a concert in the Highlands, Pawtucketville and Centralville. It was the sense of the committee, however, that concerts on the North and South commons would serve to accommodate everybody and that it would be impossible to arrange concerts in various neighborhoods. So it was voted that each of the five bands in the city give two concerts as above stated.

Tomorrow Afternoon at 3 O'Clock

On the premises, regardless of the weather, I shall offer for sale the above residence. The house is a 2½-story, slated roof, with 11 rooms, bath, pantry, large wash room, shed and unfinished attic. On the first floor there is a large parlor, with bay window, marble mantel, 2-3 papering, good sized sitting room with bay window and marble mantel and fireplace, very nice dining room with oak floor large kitchen, pantry, bath, wash room, lavatory and back shed on the first floor. There are six very nice chambers on the next floor, one of the rooms having a sink and all connections so that it could be very easily arranged for a two-tenement house. Parlor, sitting room dining room have black walnut doors, parlor doors being very handsomely inlaid. There is open plumbing, soapstone sink and wash trays, and set boiler in the wash room; gas, furnace heat, furnace being practically new. Cemented cellar with brick coal bins. The house is in excellent shape on the inside, and a coat of paint on the outside would put it in first class condition. Now then, while this house has been occupied as a private residence with a very little expence it could be made into an excellent two-tenement house. The lot has a good frontage on Franklin street, with an area of about 3850 square feet. The lot is all fenced in, and there is an automobile shed in the rear, the lot is all sodded and concreted around the house. Now for someone with a large family, or for someone who would like to make an investment in a two-tenement house, they should look this property up. It is in an excellent location and adjoins the former residence of the late William H. Wiggin, and is the second property from Willie street. The property can be seen at any time by calling and making inquiries from the auctioneer who is in full charge.

Terms: $400 to be paid to the auctioneer as soon as struck off.

July Bargain Picking

At the Store of Quality means more, much more than the mere word itself generally implies. We take stock July 31st, our official end of season. The seasons, and the merchandise too, need closer watching than ever before. Style fluctuations these days are so rapid in their fickle movements that we are kept on the "Qui Vive" all the time, and with all our watchfulness it's nearly always a guess, never a certainty on new and novel things. Naturally some items are slower sellers than others; but each item, be what it may, must go at some price the same season as purchased. The money saving opportunities every day from now until Stock-taking time will be interesting and profitable. Watch our July announcements.
